PINCHOT, OUSTED, TO BE LEADER OF FIGHT ON TAFT

Roosevelt's Friend Now Expected to Lead "Return From Elba" Movement.

TWO AIDS DISMISSED

FRIENDS HIT CANNON

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Gifford Pinchot, yesterday chief forester of the United States, and today the center of the first determined factional political quarrel in the Taft administration, is apparently the most unconcerned man involved in the controversy in which the insurgents, and Roosevelt supporters, are aligned against the Taft steam roller.

The summary dismissal, conveyed last night in the President's letter in the closing lines "by your own accord you have destroyed your usefulness as a helpful subordinate of the Government and it therefore now becomes my duty to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to remove you from your office as the Forester," has brought nothing from Mr. Pinchot more than the simple statement, "I would prefer to say nothing at this time," but political Washington almost trembles to think what may be the result.

Pinchot Appointees Worrying.

Mr. Pinchot was at his office early this morning. He promptly entered upon the closing up of his work and expected to have a very busy day. To all appeals for further statements regarding his dismissal by President Taft, Mr. Pinchot merely smiled his declination to contribute further to the news on that subject.

Throughout the Bureau of Forestry there was a feeling of alarm as to what might become of the organization which had been to such a large degree the work of the late chief forester. All of the officials of this department who occupy places of responsibility were personally selected by him.

Bureau Employes Cheer Pinchot.

George P. McCabe, the solicitor of the Agricultural Department, called on Mr. Pinchot in his office early in the day and presented to him a letter from Secretary Wilson which designated Mr. McCabe as acting forester. Albert Potter, an assistant forester, previously designated by the Secretary to relieve Mr. Pinchot, is in the West and cannot return for several days. Mr. Pinchot gave Mr. McCabe a hearty welcome and said he was ready for the transfer.

Word then being passed around that Mr. Pinchot was about to leave the building, the scores of employes gathered in the assembly room on the top floor. Mr. Pinchot met them, his entrance being signalized by deafening applause. No candidate returning from a successful campaign was ever greeted by a more enthusiastic demonstration than that accorded to the late Forester. Mr. Pinchot bade farewell to all who filed by. A little later he left the building.

Pinchot, in the opinion of many becomes the pivot on which the insurgent fight with the administration can turn its guns. The effect on Pinchot, the personal friend of Theodore Roosevelt and head champion of the Roosevelt conservation policies, being ousted from the official family of President Taft is another phase of the conjectures which fill the air. The effect of Pinchot's dismissal upon the Congressional investigation of Secretary Ballinger and the land office is another.

In the ominous silence which fell on the whole situation following the first bang after the Cabinet meeting at the White House yesterday, many of the political forecasters see unmistakable signs of a great tempest within the Republican party, with ramifications which some of the most sanguine fear to think about.

Taft Sought to Sidestep.

There is only one conclusion upon which all are unanimous. That is that there is a great fight on hand, one which the President has sought to avoid, for the present at least, and in forcing it at this time by the dismissal of Pinchot the President's supporters maintain that Mr. Taft has considered all the probable effects and consequences and has decided to see it through.

Within a few minutes after the President had instructed Secretary Wilson to remove Mr. Pinchot from office, the order had been carried out.

Similar letters of dismissal were sent at the same time to Associate Forester Overton W. Price and Assistant Law Officer Shaw, the two men whom Mr. Pinchot defended in the letter to Senator Dolliver, which was the cause, or one of the contributing causes of his dismissal.

President Taft's letter to Forester Pinchot, informing him of his dismissal, follows:

The White House, Washington, Jan. 7, 1910.—The Secretary of Agri-

Pinchot Is Yale Man, a Forest Lover and a Millionaire Bachelor

GIFFORD B. PINCHOT.

GIFFORD PINCHOT was the first American young man to take up the profession of forestry upon leaving college as his life work. He inherited the taste for this work. His grandfather, expelled from France after the restoration, settled in Northeastern Pennsylvania and became a lumberman. He became a convert to preservation and his sons took up the same work. James Pinchot, a son of the refugee, founded the Yale School of Forestry.

GIFFORD PINCHOT was born in Simsbury, Conn., Aug. 11, 1865, and was graduated from Yale with the class of 1889. He studied abroad several years and in 1892 began his first notable work, the planning of the George Vanderbilt grounds at Biltmore, N. C.

HE became chief of the Division of Forestry, now a bureau, July 1, 1898, and the growth of this work has been under his direction. He is wealthy, being rated at $7,000,000, is a bachelor, owns a fine house in Washington and entertains much. He was an intimate of President Roosevelt, and was the former President's companion on horseback rides and tree chopping expeditions.

BOY KILLS TWO SAFEBLOWERS IN A POSTOFFICE

By Associated Press.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 8.—In a struggle early today with two safeblowers, Paul Sauls, 17 years of age, who was left to watch the Postoffice building, shot and killed them both in the basement of the building.

The boy was only slightly injured.

The crackmen, both of whom were white, have not been identified.

3 days out of five

This week the St. Louis merchants used more space for their display announcements in the POST-DISPATCH than they used in the Globe-Democrat, Republic and Times COMBINED.

On Tuesday the count was:

Post-Dispatch . . 77 columns
Globe-Democrat, Republic and Times combined . . . 72 columns

On Thursday:

Post-Dispatch . . 81 columns
Globe-Democrat, Republic and Times combined . . . 68 columns

Again yesterday, Friday:

Post-Dispatch . . 59 columns
Globe-Democrat, Republic and Times combined . . . 52 columns

This preference for the POST-DISPATCH by the St. Louis Merchants over ALL its competitors, as shown by the figures above, is unparalleled in any other metropolitan City in the U. S.

If it were not so extraordinary we would not repeat these statements day after day, week after week, and year after year.

WHO'LL BE FIRST EUCHRE SHARP IN HOODLUM WAGON?

Laird Wants a Woman Martyr to Make Test of the Gambling Law.

LAWYER AFTER POLICE

Would Answer "Petty Interference" of Creecy's Men With a Civil Suit.

GLENNON AGAINST IT

Archbishop Refuses to Countenance Game Even for Benefit of Church.

President Laird of the Police Board announced Saturday that he and the other members of the board would be glad to have a test made of the legality of Chief Creecy's order against public euchre games, if anyone wished to submit to arrest for the purpose of making such a test. He invites some obliging woman to have herself arrested.

"The board did not inspire Chief Creecy's order," said Col. Laird to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "nor did the President of the board, but all the members agree with him that the euchres appear to be a form a public gambling. There was no formal action on the matter at last evening's meeting, but in an informal discussion it was found all approved of the Chief's order.

"If anyone wishes to resist, and to make a defense in court, we can thus get a ruling on the matter. At present I know of no such ruling."

Glennon Opposes Euchres.

Archbishop Glennon, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter Saturday, gave the impression that he did not disapprove Chief Creecy's order, although it may affect enchres held for the benefit of churches. He said he did not expect to address any communication to the priests of the diocese about the matter.

"It is within my province," he said, "to look after the morals of the diocese and to enforce the laws of the church. It is not expected of me to enforce the laws of the State or the city, consequently I cannot see how a parallel order to the one issued by Chief Creecy can be expected of me.

"I never have been much in favor of parish euchres. In fact, I have discouraged them. Euchres are not held for diocesan purposes. Sometimes they are held to aid a parish school, or to reduce a church debt. I do not know how the parties are conducted, as I never was present at one.

"The playing of cards is not wrong in itself. It becomes wrong through the abuse of it, or when it deprives someone of the means of supporting those dependent on him. It may come to be a matter for the police, just as wine-

IRON MOUNTAIN TO ABOLISH TWO GRADE CROSSINGS

Road Officials Notify Mayor of Plan to Raise the Tracks.

TO AID FREE BRIDGE

Will Not Resist Condemnation at Broadway, Fourth, Sixth and Seventh Streets.

PLANS TO BE CHANGED

It Will Be Necessary to Alter Grade of Western Approach to Structure.

Plans for an elevated track on Poplar street, to do away with the dangerous grade crossings at Broadway, Fourth, Sixth and Seventh streets, have been submitted by the Iron Mountain Railroad to City Counselor Walther and President Reber of the Board of Public Improvements.

The elevated track plans, according to city officials who saw them Saturday, were made several years ago, in anticipation of the time when the city would take steps to compel the grade crossings to be abolished. The right of way over which a part of the structure is to run has been acquired piecemeal during 20 years. The elevated track, as planned, will extend from Cupples Station to a connection with the Iron Mountain tracks on the river front.

In other words, the Iron Mountain was ready with elaborate and detailed plans in hand, to abolish the Poplar street grade crossings wherever it was required to do so. Aggressive action by city officials on the plans urged, during several years past, by the Post-Dispatch, would have resulted in the disappearance, before now, of the crossings, regarded as the most dangerous in the city.

Cross Three Streets.

The Poplar street surface tracks cross three street car lines, including the busy and crowded Broadway line. The crossing has always been a source of delay, annoyance and fear to the passengers of the Broadway, Fourth and Seventh street lines, and have retarded the business development of South Broadway.

The Iron Mountain's reason for submitting the plans now is that the proposed elevated tracks must pass under the Free Bridge approach at or near Broadway. The plans for the approach, as now made, are not high enough to permit the needed clearance to the elevated track, and the Iron Mountain desires that the approach be made three feet higher.

Land is to be condemned, by legal process, for the west aproach of the Free Bridge at Chouteau avenue, and a part of the land which must be acquired is the property of the Iron Mountain, or of the Gould railroad interests.

The Iron Mountain's counsel has informed City Counselor Walther, it was stated at the City Hall Saturday, that if the Free Bridge approach plan is changed as requested, the railroad will not resist condemnation of the property. Otherwise, the implication is, it will resist.

Mayor Kreismann and President Reber told a Post-Dispatch reporter Saturday that they would be glad to see the proposed elevated tracks built, but that they were unable to say what changes in the bridge approach plans would be possible.

Not Make a Difference.

"I don't think resistance on the part of the railroad to condemnation proceedings would make much difference," said Mr. Reber, "for the reason that the condemnation proceedings would take their regular course anyway. But if the Iron Mountain wants to elevate its Poplar street track, the city will be disposed to help it do so.

"The problem is made more difficult by the fact that the bridge approach does not cross the elevated track at right angles. The angle is an acute one, and the bridge approach, which is 39 feet high at Broadway according to present plans, should be at least eighteen feet higher than the elevated. The railroad engineers say this will not leave them room enough, and ask that the approach be at least three feet higher. I have not yet gone into the question how much it would cost to add this three feet to the height, or who would pay the cost."

Mayor Kreismann said he had learned recently that the Iron Mountain had for years been buying up a right-of-way from the river to Mill Creek Valley, with a view to elevating the Poplar street track. "The officials of the road say, he added, "that they have presented plans to city officials in years past for doing away with the grade crossings, but I have no personal knowledge as to that."

SENATE COMMITTEE STARTS NEW WAR FOR INSURGENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Another fight between the insurgents and the organization in the House has been precipitated by the action of the Senate Committee on Public Lands today in reporting a resolution authorizing the appointment by the joint committee and the Speaker as a joint committee to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

JURY CONVICTS CLERGYMAN FOR ABDUCTING GIRL

Wife and Children in Court When Verdict of Guilty Is Announced.

OTTAWA, Kan., Jan. 8.—The Rev. W. M. Stuckey, a former minister at Williamsburg, today was found guilty of abducting Lorena Sutherland, a 15-year-old parishioner, for his own immoral purposes and for abducting her for "white slave" purposes. The penalty is from one to five years on each count.

The jury considered the case only 20 minutes. When the verdict was read Stucky appeared nervous. The minister's wife, who had stood by her husband throughout the ordeal, sobbed audibly today when the verdict was read, and later when Stuckey was taken back to jail. Their two children also were in tears.

Sentence was deferred pending consideration of an appeal.

Stuckey, besides being the pastor of a church at Williamsburg, was also editor of a newspaper. Lorena Sutherland was a member of his congregation and worked in his office. They were arrested at Waukegan, Ill., where they were found living together last summer.

SOLDAN HIGH SCHOOL GIRL STEALS FROM BOUDOIR AT MIDNIGHT, ELOPES AND WEDS

Miss Ethel Volmer Becomes Mrs. Floyd Hess in Kansas City.

Why certain girls of the sophomore class of the Soldan High School have been giggling and tittering all week, and disturbing the recitations with whispered "ohs" and "ahs," was explained Saturday when their secret was let out. Miss Ethel Volmer, 17 years old, the belle of the class, eloped Tuesday night through the sleet to Kansas City, where she was married the following night to Floyd Hesse, 22 years old.

Only a few of the girls were in the plot and they guarded the secret closely until letters from Mrs. Hesse authorized them to announce her marriage. She is a daughter of John Volmer, 1369 Arlington avenue, stood well in her studies and is a musician. But she has relinquished books for the broom, and is keeping house at 124 Bates avenue, Kansas City, "the happiest girl in the world," she writes.

She went home Tuesday, packed her suitcase and when the storm broke, slipped downstairs and hid it in a nook of the front porch. She states in her letter that she counted on the soundness with which her parents usually slept. At 9:30, in her stocking feet, with a hat-box in one hand and her shoes in the other, she tip-toed down the stairs and gained the porch. She donned her shoes and fled through the sleet, forgetting her suit case.

At the house of a confidante she found the few girl friends who were in the secret. One of them sent her brother after the suitcase, and then the party, bedraggled but with unquenched excitement, took a car for the Union Station.

The bride-to-be departed for Kansas City at 11:30 p. m., amid showers of rice and good wishes. Through some misunderstanding, Hesse did not meet her in Kansas City the next morning. She went to a theater at which he is employed at 8 a. m. and waited until he came to work in the afternoon.

On his arrival, they found a telegram from Volmer, who had an accurate suspicion as to the whereabouts of his daughter. He warned them he was coming on the next train to take his child home again. The young couple hastily sought a justice of the peace and were married. Volmer arrived an hour after the wedding.

WOMAN CARRIED FROM FIRE AFTER FLAMES HAD REACHED BED AND BEGUN BURNING HAIR

Young Son Gave Warning to Neighbors—Widow Loses All Her Clothing.

Eight-year-old Henry Saunders, awakened at 2:30 a. m. Saturday by the crackling of flames in the room where he slept, was so panic-stricken that he fled without arousing his mother, Mrs. Mary Saunders, and ran across the ice in his barefeet and nightgown to the house of a neighbor, on Oliver Avenue, Ferguson.

"Save my mamma; she's burning up," he screamed, beating the door with his fists. By the time the men of the household were astir and had thrown on a few garments, the one-story frame cottage was almost enveloped in flames. Mrs. Saunders was found lying on her bed, stupefied with smoke, and with her hair on fire. She was carried out in the nick of time, for the men found it impossible to save any furniture from the flames.

Mrs. Saunders is a widow and Henry is her only child. The fire left them destitute, with not a garment save their night dresses. They are being cared for at the home of Mrs. Harry Ludeker, a neighbor, and the Ferguson branch of the Needle Workers' Guild has undertaken to supply them with clothes.

MRS. LIONBERGER, A SISTER-IN-LAW OF NAGEL, DEAD

Mrs. Louise Shepley Lionberger, wife of Isaac H. Lionberger, died at 8:45 a. m., Saturday, at the family residence, 37 Westmoreland place, after a three months' illness. Nephritis was the cause of death. The end had been expected momentarily for several days.

Mrs. Lionberger was 47 years old, and was the daughter of the late John R. Shepley. Her brothers, John F. and Arthur Shepley, and her sisters, Mrs. Charles Nagel and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge, were at the Lionberger home when she died. Mrs. Nagel, wife of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, came here from Washington a few days ago.

Six children survive Mrs. Lionberger, of whom the oldest, Margaret, was a debutante of last season. There are three younger girls and two boys.

The rearing of her large family was Mrs. Lionberger's chief concern, and she preferred the quiet of the home to the social leadership which might have been hers had she so chosen. She was in sympathy with the public activities of her husband, who is a well-known lawyer and worker for civic improvement.

The last social affair held at the Lionberger home was a reception given to the college set by Mrs. Lionberger in honor of her daughter, Louise, a student in Mary Institute, on Christmas, 1908.

The death of her mother, Mrs. Shepley, coming shortly before Miss Lionberger's debut, caused Mrs. Lionberger to avoid social activity in the ensuing season.

The funeral arrangements have not been made. Interment will be private.

PLAYS JOHN, THE PIPER'S SON, BUT THIS PIG IS SQUEALLESS

By Gosh! I Didn't Know I Had the Thing, Declares Thief With Dressed Porker.

The old nursery jingle about John, the piper's son, who stole a pig and away he run, was revamped in real life Friday night when Thomas Warren was caught running at Twenty-first street and Clark avenue with a dressed porker under his arm.

"Where did you get the hog?" asked Sergeant Conlon when Warren was led into Central District Station.

"By gosh, I didn't know I had that thing," said Warren viewing the pig sheepishly.

Charles Cleary, who was with Warren, also was arrested. The pig was stolen from a wagon of the Swift Packing Co.

DEMOCRATS TALK HARMONY; SPLIT ON CORPORATIONS

Effort to Have Party Define Position on Public Utilities Defeated.

SPEECHES BY LEADERS

Francis, Folk and Reed Attack Republican Policies and Extravagances.

MANY ARE AFTER TOGA

Former Gov. Dockery and W. D. Vandiver Latest Aspirants to Appear.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 8.—The efforts of Frank P. Walsh to bring before the Democratic convention resolutions defining the party's attitude toward public service corporations failed on the first trial, but Walsh will try again. When he tried to get recognition he was told that the program of the meeting had been arranged by the State Committee and could not be changed. When he insisted on speaking he was told that he was out of order and he sat down.

Walsh is backed in his efforts by James H. Whitecotton of Monroe County, George W. Humphrey, speaker pro tem of the Senate, and by several Kansas City associates of Walsh.

Opposing them are James A. Reed, one of the prospective candidates for United States Senator, and several corporation representatives, including O. M. Spencer, general solicitor of the Burlington; John H. Lucas, attorney of the Metropolitan Street Railway Co., and Newlan Conkling, representative of the Santa Fe Railroad.

Resolution Is Prepared.

The resolution which the Walsh men have prepared follows:

Resolved, That the Democratic party is absolutely opposed to:

1. Grants to any public utility corporation for a longer period than 20 years.

2. Any franchise precluding a municipality from reasonable opportunity to adopt municipal ownership, should it so desire, on basis of actual valuation.

3. Granting any franchise without a full and complete investigation and report by a public utility commission of the physical properties and books and records of the company. Such public utility commission being amply empowered to act and enforce its orders.

4. The issuance hereafter of any stocks and bonds by any public utility corporation unless said stocks and bonds shall have first been duly submitted to and approved by a properly constituted public utility commission, existing under authority either of the state or municipality where such franchise is being exercised.

Reed Deplores Controversies.

"The controversies which have divided Democrats" said James A. Reed, "have resulted almost entirely from individual preference for individual candidates. Our quarrel with the Republican party involves principles of government which affect our country and every individual. Republican policies destroy free government. The tariff is a legalized robbery. Republican extravagance is intolerable. Trusts and combines are the legitimate offspring of Republicanism.

"Shall we jeopardize the country's welfare to advance the personal interests of any man? Shall we injure our party because of personal or petty reasons? No man who lives is as great as the Democratic party and no man's ambition is as great as the success of the party.

"I am willing to take every Democrat by the hand and swear perpetual alliance. I want in the next struggle to stand in line with Folk and Stone, with Dockery and Stephens, with Ball and Cowherd, with Clark and Francis. I want to feel the inspiration of a united and valorous host of Democrats marching in perfect unison and absolute accord.

Hadley Was Inconsistent.

"In prohibition districts Hadley has cajoled the temperance element with flattering prospects. In the large cities he declared for home rule and gave the impression that the liquor interests would be unrestrained. He was the guest of the prohibitionists one day and enjoyed the society of the brewer the next. He made his campaign with a Bible in one hand and a glass of beer in the other.

"Cowherd in a manly way stated his position.

"He did not play favorites with either the wet or dry men, and he suffered at the hands of both. Hadley has declared for home rule and said that the people of the larger cities were competent to administer to their own wants, but he failed to keep his promise because he wanted to hold the police departments in his own grasp. Mr. Reed then dwelt at length on how Gov. Hadley had used the police and excise powers in Kansas City, and the picture he drew was the darkest possible, as it eclipsed the Folk administration, or

CARDINAL SATOLLI DIES IN ROME IN SEVENTIETH YEAR

Prelate Suffered From Nephritis and Death Had Been Expected for Weeks.

WAS CLOSE TO POPE

By Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 8.—Francesco Di Paola Satolli, bishop of Frascati, arch-priest of the Lateran arch-basilica and Prefect of the Congregation of Studies, died at 4 o'clock this morning. Death followed an illness that began last June with an attack of nephritis and atrophy of the right lung and was complicated recently with blood poisoning.

Hope for the ultimate recovery of the Cardinal was abandoned several days ago and the end had been expected hourly. Extreme unction was administered two weeks ago. Soon after death the body was placed in state in the chapel of the Lateran Palace.

The Pope was greatly grieved when the announcement of the Cardinal's death was made to him and recalled that it was the convincing argument of Satolli which influenced him to accept the papacy at the last conclave.

Almost to the hour of his death the Cardinal discussed with the few who were permitted to see him the affairs of the church in the United States in which country he had a profound interest following his visits, which included his mission as first apostolic delegate from the Vatican in the United States in the fall of 1892.

Hoped Italy Would Be Republic.

He remembered well the details of his stay there and recently related how, before his appointment as apostolic delegate, he had been instructed by Pope Leo to interrogate the American bishops concerning the advisability of creating an apostolic delegation at Washington. All opposed such a move with the exception of Archbishop Ireland.

Francis Satolli was born in Marsciano, Archdiocese of Perugia, Italy, July 12 1839. He came of an ancient and noble family.

In the quaint ecclesiastical city of his birth, whose university dates back to the beginning of the fourteenth century, his boyhood was passed amid associations which naturally led him to choose an ecclesiastical life. He was educated in the Diocesan Seminary of Perugia, then the most eminent ecclesiastical school in Italy, over which presided Joachin Pecci, Archbishop of Perugia, designed some years later to be called to the chair of St. Peter's as Pope Leo XIII.

Showed Ability When Young.

The boy Satolli was an apt, enthusiastic pupil, and when very young displayed gifts of oratory of the highest order, both in his native Italian tongue and in classical Latin. To these accomplishments he added great powers of original though and marked facility as a writer.

It was natural, therefore, when Archbishop Pecci became Pope that he should take an early opportunity of summoning his gifted pupil to Rome, where he became one of the Pope's chief helpers in the restoration of philosophical and theological studies. To him were intrusted the most important professorships in the Propaganda and the Roman Seminary.

Sent to the United States.

In the meantime Satolli had been created Titular Archbishop of Lepanto. He achieved marked success in Rome and was chosen finally to represent the Pope in America in the fall of 1889 at the celebration in Baltimore of the centenary of the Catholic hierarchy in the United States and also at the inauguration of the Catholic University of the United States at Washington.

Satolli was presented to the President and Cabinet and became greatly impressed with the vast possibilities for the advancement of the Church in the United States. This visit and the accounts he carried back to the Pope formed the prelude to his designation as Apostolic delegate to the United States.

He was elevated to the rank of Cardinal in January, 1896, at the Cathedral in Baltimore, remained in America some time longer and finally was recalled to Rome, where he has ever since been perhaps the most esteemed of the Pope's close advisers. He was often called the "American Cardinal," a title that pleased him.

Cardinal Satolli was mentioned as a possible successor to Pope Leo XIII when the latter died.

Cardinal Satolli on his last visit to America in 1904 came to St. Louis to see the World's Fair. He was a guest during his stay here of Archbishop Glennon. Several prominent St. Louisans gave receptions in his honor and he was feted by the officials of the Louisana Purchase Exposition Co.

Archbishop Glennon said Saturday: "He was a great theologian, especially in the field of scholastic philosophy. He was a great orator especially in the Italian and Latin languages. During the last three years he was friendly to America and was in close touch with American ideas and movements."

NOTED ECCLESIASTIC WHO DIED IN ROME AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Pinchot Is Put Out Of the Taft Administration

culture informs me that on the 28th of December your associate forester, Mr. Price, went to him and proposed to resign on the ground that he had been engaged with Mr. Shaw, assistant law officer, in instigating the publication in various newspapers and magazines, attacking the good name of Secretary Ballinger, and charging the Interior Department and the Land Office with corruption.

The Secretary thereupon wrote a note to you, under date of Dec. 29, asking for your recommendation in the premises. You did not answer, but on Jan. 4 you had a conversation with him, in which you said you wished to make a statement which should be read in the Senate at the same time that my message transmitting the record in the Glavis case reached there, and that you thought you could induce Senator Dolliver to introduce the statement for you.

The Secretary advised against such a course, but asked you for a recommendation as to accepting Price's resignation, in order that he might bring the matter to me, to whom, he told you, it must ultimately come, because I had considered the Glavis charges and had passed upon them.

Disregards the Warning.

Without further conference with the Secretary and before making a report to him, you succeeded in making public, by having it read in the Senate, a letter from you, stating that you had sufficiently disciplined Messrs. Price and Shaw by reprimanding them, and that your recommendation would be that no further punishment was required, and this before that recommendation was submitted to the Secretary and me, whose power and duty it was to determine upon Price's admissions as to his complicity what action should be taken with respect to his resignation.

In order to understand the full purport of your letter, in which you admit the complicity of Price and Shaw in the publication of the press, it should be said that the gravamen of the Glavis charges was that Secretary Ballinger and the others were all effected by a corrupt wish to patent 33 so-called Cunningham claims upon coal in Alaska; that the question whether these claims were fraudulent or not remained to be decided upon the evidence after both the United States and the claimants had been heard; that every patent as an executive act is completely within the jurisdiction of the President to direct the withholding of it in order that he himself may examine the evidence as to the validity of the claim.

These facts understood, the plain intimations in your letter are, first, that I had reached a wrong conclusion as to the good faith of Secretary Ballinger and the officers of the Land Office, although you and your subordinates had only seen the evidence of Glavis, the accuser, and had never seen or read the evidence of those accused or the records that they disclosed, which were submitted to me; and, second, that under these circumstances, without the explgitations of Messrs. Shaw and Price in the daily, weekly and monthly press of the charges of Glavis, the administration, including the President and the officers of the Interior Department and Land Office would have allowed certain fraudulent claims to have been patented on coal lands in Alaska, although the matter had been specifically brought to the attention of the President by the Glavis charges.

You solicited the opportunity to make such a declaration in Congress for the purpose of offsetting, if possible in the public mind, the President's decision in the Glavis case, supported by the opinion of the attorney-general, after a full examination by both of the evidence adduced by the accuser, and the evidence on behalf of the accused, while the latter evidence, you and your subordinates had never seen.

You did this against the advice of the secretary of agriculture, without notifying him that you intended to do so, and without conferring with me at all.

Your letter was in effect an improper appeal to Congress and the public to excuse in advance the guilt of your subordinates before I could act, and against my decision in the Glavis case before the whole evidence on which that was based could be considered.

I should be glad to regard what has happened only as a personal reflection, so that I could pass it over and take no official cognizance of it, but other and higher considerations must govern me.

When the people of the United States elected me President they placed me in an office of the highest dignity and charged me with the duty of maintaining that dignity, and proper respect for the office on the part of my subordinates. Moreover, if I were to pass over this matter in silence, it would be most demoralizing to the discipline of the executive branch of the Government.

By your own conduct you have destroyed your usefulness as a helpful subordinate of the Government, and it therefore now becomes my duty to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to remove you from your office as the Forester. Very sincerely yours,

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Hon. Gifford Pinchot, Forester.

The letter supplies the topic of conversation in Washington.

ICE SPAN OVER RIVER TO PLAY A SUNDAY BENEFIT

The temperature will have to be above freezing for several days before the present ice-bridge on the river will be loosened and pass out of the harbor, in the opinion of rivermen. The slight thaw of Friday had no appreciable effect on the ice gorge. The river is blocked from St. Louis to Chester, and the ice will have to go out at Chester first. This, the river experts believe, will give St. Louis boat owners at least one or two days' notice before the harbor at St. Louis begins to clear.

Many St. Louisans ventured upon the ice Saturday to the point in the river where the tugboat of the Wiggins Ferry Co. cut a channel some distance above the Ead's Bridge. This channel has not frozen over again and blocks foot passage across the river at that point.

Pumps Keep Craft Afloat.

Owners of wharfboats and other harbor craft were kept busy Saturday pumping the water from their vessels. The water seeps through slight cracks in the boat timbers at this time of the year and necessitates almost constant use of the pumps. The barge Louise, moored at the foot of Gratiot street, sank Friday and was raised by the tug Susie Hazard, which pumped her out.

The yacht Racine of the representatives of the Field and Stream publication, which has been icebound at Piasa since Dec. 10, has been put back into the water since it was repainted. The party has made ready to start down the river as soon as conditions will permit. Further up the river the yacht Michigan, with a party on board, is icebound at Six-Mile Island.

Rivermen say that the stage is very high for this time of the year, and that boats are in danger of being left on land if the stream falls suddenly. This is the greatest danger now apparent if the ice-gorge breaks quickly.

Francis Predicts Success.

"We can achieve a victory in Missouri if we are united and harmonious," said David R. Francis. "Our differences are past—dead and buried—let this harmony meeting be their requiem. Party success should be our first aim to which every personal ambition should be subordinated. Speaking for myself, I am willing to serve in the ranks or in whatever position to which you may assign me.

"Why should we not succeed?

"Do you think the Republicans in Congress represented the interests or the sentiment of Missouri in their votes and utterance (if they made any) on the Payne-Aldrich tariff law? The Republican Senator and every one of the Republican representatives from Missouri voted for every increased tariff duty that were proposed and in one instance our Republican Senator voted for a duty that was too high even for Mr. Aldrich to support.

"All that is required in addition to concerted action on our part is to acquaint the people of the State with the iniquities and deception of the Republican tariff, and that can be done by quoting the utterances of Republican lips. Paternalism is but one remove from Socialism. Missouri must be redeemed. Triumphant Democracy in this State will mean much to our brethren in other states."

"The great fight in the country today is to equalize the distribution of wealth," said former Gov. Folk. "We cannot bring about a forced equality of conditions, but there may be an equalization of burdens and opportunities. There is a growing demand for protection for the people against monopoly instead of protecting monopoly against the people. The only purpose of protective tariff is to stifle competition, and to that extent create monopoly.

"The Democratic party should take a clean cut stand against the system of protection. The fight should not be for free raw materials and protection for manufactured products, or vice versa, but for no protection at all. No protection for monopoly should be the battle cry in the next campaign.

"With Cannonism and Aldrichism in the control of the legislative machinery of the national Government, directing party policies, suppressing reformative measures, blocking every movement in the interest of the people, making sport of representative government, insolent with power, defying public opinion, and planning further to serve the special iterests, there is a picture that should alarm every patriotic American.

"Let the Democratic party stand unequivocally against privilege and for equal opportunity. Let it fight not wealth but the abuses that produce tainted riches on one hand, and undeserved poverty on the other. Let it place manhood above money, and conscience above cunning. Let it stand for freedom, freedom of the press, freedom of religion, freedom of speech and freedom from graft, corruption and privilege."

Dodging Senatorial Question.

Many were the wires that were pulled in the efforts of the big guns to capture and to keep harmony.

The country delegates are fighting shy of the senatorial sweepstakes. Behind the smiling countenances of the leaders from the various sections of the State who came ostensibly for the purpose of holding a harmony festival, there lurks the grim suspicion that one or the other of the three men mentioned for senator is to get the benefit of the conference in one way or another.

Friends of former Gov. Folk, while not as active as the supporters of David R. Francis, declared quietly that Folk will be a candidate. The intimation was broadly scattered that Folk could have a presidential indorsement if he wanted it, but that if he believed he could serve his country better by being a senator he would become a candidate for that office.

These friends seemed to have the impression that if Folk came out for the senatorship it would be handed him on a silver platter.

As a result of today's gathering two new aspirants, former Gov. A. M. Dockery and W. D. Vandiver, may decide to try the Senatorial toga. It is apparent that Vandiver wants Folk to stay out of the fight so that he may have the support of that element of the party friendly to the former Governor.

Dockery is said to think he would make a good compromise candidate in the event of dissensions between the Reed, Folk and Francis followers.

Reviews of New Books

CHARLES MAJOR'S NEW BOOK.

CHARLES MAJOR'S admirers will probably proclaim that he has never written anything more entertaining than "A Gentle Knight of Old Brandenberg," which has just been issued in book form after running serially. In truth, there is less artificiality and more real history in this book than Mr. Major ever put into any other. It is the story of the romantic life of Wilhelmina, the sister of Frederick the Great of Germany. It has to do chiefly with that phase of her career involved in the efforts of her father, Frederick William, to force her into a marriage with a man whom she abhorred. The story is a fine picture of the times when it was considered a weakness not to drink liquor to excess.

The author's text is that it is better to be born a beggar with freedom than a princess whose very soul is not her own and whose life and happiness are the subjects of barter for the promotion of statecraft. It may be well said that Mr. Major has made a notable contribution to historical romance. (MacMillan.)

POEMS BY BLISS CARMEN.

"THE ROUGH RIDER AND OTHER POEMS," by Bliss Carman, contains 20 poems. The Roosevelt poem, from which the little volume takes its title, is, of course, the most striking of the contents, but this one, "The Golden West," is superior to it in some respects:

In the golden dawn of the world,
When man emerged
From the mysterious East,
With the breath of life in his mouth
And the tell-tale trace
Of the red clay on his face.

He turned with inquisitive gaze,
A child of the light,
To follow the track of the sun
Through the void far blue,
Seeing it sink to rest
In a glorious golden West.

Then an unassuageable urge
Awoke in his blood.
The brooding spirit of Earth
Whispered a word in his heart
And man went forth on the trail,
Knowing he should not fail.

II.

And the slow centuries
Measured his toilsome march,
While ever his face was set
To lands that lie beyond
The going down of the sun,
Where endeavor's requital is won.

From Egypt and Greece and Tyre,
From Assyria and Rome,
With color and pomp and joy,
Laughter and chants and war,
Moved the great caravan
Of wandering man.

Conquering mountain and sea,
Spreading through forest and plain,
Crossing the outer flood—
The sire of the ancient world—
He passed over new domain
Like the hosts of sweeping rain.

Traversing prairie and wood,
Waterway, desert and range,
At last by the ultimate shore
Of the ageless sea,
His pack-trains come to rest
In our golden West.

III.

Here have the most high Ones,
The Overlords of the world,
The Archangels of man,
Brought their earth children at last,
To the happy land prepared
For those who have labored and dared.

O men and women born
Of the teeming and holy earth
And led through the myriad years
By the impulse and vision divine,
Behold now what shall be done
With the heritage we have won?

Here with an empire to use
Wealth beyond Solomon's dream,
And the balm and respite of peace,
In a garden of the world,
What is the news or the plan
Of Twentieth Century man?

IV.

I heard the Sierras reply,
Rank after rank as they rose
Through the golden and violet light,
"The destined days are at hand,
When my children shall arise
And assume the heroic guise

"From the beginning designed
For the seraphs and sons of earth,
They shall put off envy and fear,
And skulking merciless greed
And be girded against all ills
With the vigor and poise of the hills.

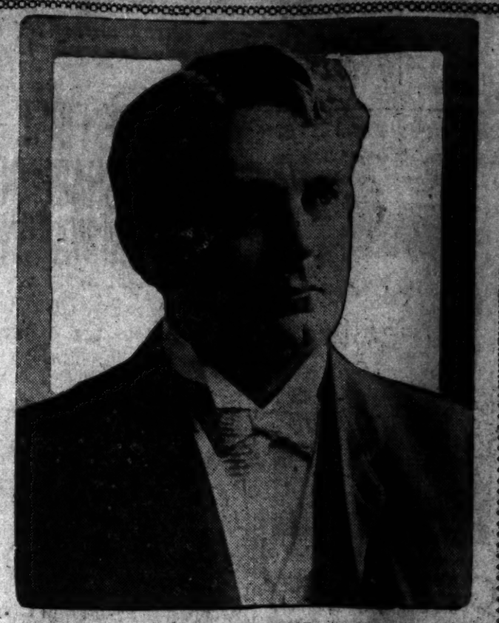

"Here on this border of time
Where mighty morrows are born,
Emerging from ages of dream
And the dust of unreason and strife,
They shall grow wise and humane
With a gladness virile and sane.

"Primal in beauty and pride,
Christian in kindness and calm,
Modern in knowledge and skill,
Sons of the morning, arise—
Earth's awaited and best—
From the golden West!"

WHEN THE WEST WAS YOUNG.

"A KNIGHT IN THE WILDERNESS," by Oliver Marble Gale and Harriet Wheeler, is a thrilling story of the early period of the Middle West. It is a heart-gripping love story, with a background of hair-raising adventures, in which is woven skillfully the bigness, the freshness, the vigor and the spiritual and physical courage typical of the time when the West was young. The hero is a young Virginian who casts his lot among these savage surroundings and conquers all by his chivalry and manhood. (Reilly & Bretton.)

"THE POE CULT."

THIS is the title of a work by Eugene L. Didier. It is for the most part made up of contributions which the author has made to various publications through a period of 30 years. He has earnestly sought to determine how much is true of all that has been written of the poet, and endeavors to arrive at a just estimate of his genius. It is beyond question that Poe has had many traducers, but this sort of thing has had its day, and Mr. Didier and his set remain rather nicely in possession of the field. The fame of Poe has grown wonderfully since Mr. Didier took up the cudgel in his behalf, and he has also a much better name than he did, thanks to the efforts of these zealous admirers. Mr. Didier's book would be more enjoyable to the country as a whole if he did not so much claim Poe for the South. We think of Poe as American—not Southern—and we know of no reason why a Northerner like Hamilton W. Mabie should not have delivered the address at the unveiling of a bust of the poet at the University of Virginia upon the occasion of the semi-centennial of his death. This is quite as ridiculous as was the objection to giving Poe a place in our Hall of Fame. (Broadway Publishing Co., New York.)

GLEAMS FROM CAMP-FIRES.

IT requires some courage for a hunter of such game as we have in the Western Hemisphere to offer his experiences in the literary mart just now, but Matt Hoover has the necessary temerity, and "Wild Ginger" modestly essays the puddle in which "African Game Trails" is the dominant duck. Like Kipling's sea-fighter, Mr. Hoover has lived more stories than the average nature faker could hope to invent. He has hunted and fished this continent pretty well over, and the 346 pages of anecdotal matter in his book appears to have been to him something more of a labor of love than a literary effort. He has lived life from the sportsman's point of view, and while he has not given us any such humorous effort as Mr. Paine's "The Tent Dwellers," he has nevertheless leavened his informative matter with a good deal that is laughable, has told some things excellently well, and doubtless will make many a reader sigh to have had some of the hunting and fishing that have fallen to his lot. Mr. Hoover is a member of the New York State Fish, Game and Forest League, and there are many useful allusions in his book to the responsibility devolving at this time upon every lover of the wild. INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATES.

FOR the benefit of students interested in collegiate debates, Prof. Paul M. Pearson of Swarthmore College, Pennsylvania, has compiled an interesting summary of all questions discussed in the intercollegiate contests last year. The report of each debate comprises a synopsis of all the speeches both affirmative and negative, notice of which side won and a list of references used by the contestants. In some instances there are also reports of the rebuttal speeches. It is stated that these reports were prepared by the debaters themselves and their essential accuracy can therefore be relied upon.

One of the most important as well as interesting features of the work is the introductory review by Prof. Pearson covering the whole subject of intercollegiate debates. It is evident that this review proceeds from a full mind, for every criticism and suggestion concerning methods and subjects for discussion carries with it the impress of one who speaks with the authority of comprehensive knowledge and clear reflection.

While the work is designed specially for debaters, it will be found of value to the general reader whose mind is interested in the chief topics of current political, social and academic controversies. The speeches prepared on the opposing sides represent careful study of all leading authorities on the various issues, and therefore will be found helpful to anyone who wishes to make similar studies of his own.

HEBREW LITERATURE— 1743-1885.

A VOLUME giving a view of a period in Hebrew literature has just been published by the Jewish Publication Society of America. It is from the pen of Professor Nahum Slouschz, who is one of the lecturers at the Sorbonne in Paris. He tells of the renaissance of Hebrew literature between the years 1743 and 1885. The work was prepared as a thesis for the doctorate in the Paris University, and the author knows his subject thoroughly. He has acquainted himself with the entire field of Hebrew literature in the period treated and has succeeded in making the work interesting and not too dry for inexpert reading.

In reading the volume one gets a glimpse into the intellectual and moral status of the Jewish people in the years covered. The author is not merely a chronicler. He is also an interpreter. This makes his work instructive as well as informative. While Prof. Slouschz appears to be a great lover of the Hebrew, he does not undertake to predict whether it is going to be again the national and exclusive language of the Jews. His endeavor is to show that it could be such a language, since great works have been written originally in it, and others have since been translated into it.

The work has been translated into English by Henrietta Szold. The translation reads smoothly, although the attempt to give some of the quotations from the Hebrew literally has proved rather unsuccessful, as the language in them is stilted. There is an exhaustive index at the end, which enhances the value of the volume. (Jewish Publication Society.)

OLD ST. LOUISAN MADE PRESIDENT OF GRAND TRUNK

Charles M. Hays Elected to the Head of Canadian Railway Corporation.

BEGAN HERE AS CLERK

For Several Years in the Service of the Missouri Pacific and Wabash.

Special Cable From London Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Charles M. Hays has been elected president of the Grand Trunk Railway Co. of Canada, succeeding Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson. He is already president of the Grand Trunk-Pacific, a separate corporation that is building an extension of the system to the Pacific.

The rise of this American railroad expert has been phenomenal. In 1873 he was a railroad clerk in St. Louis at $45 a month. He was a native of Rock Island and at the age of 19 began his career with the old Atlantic & Pacific, now the Frisco. Within a year he got a new place at $50 a month and a year later was drawing $75.

Five or six years later he was private secretary to the general manager of the Missouri Pacific in St. Louis and his pay was $100 a month. He held this position seven years, his pay gradually increasing and his knowledge of the railroad business growing.

West to the Wabash.

In 1884 the future railroad president became the private secretary to General Manager Talmage of the Wabash at $300 a month. A year later he was made the general manager and he quit reckoning his salary by the month and figured it by the year, the amount being $12,000. He guided the Wabash in the troublous times following a reorganization and put the property on its feet.

After nine years' service he became the general manager of the Grand Trunk at $25,000 a year. Though compelled by his duties to remain most of the time in Montreal, he maintained his residence in St. Louis.

He had a five-years contract with the Grand Trunk but after three years his employers broke it and voluntarily raised the salary to $35,000.

In 1901 he went to the Southern Pacific as President, the salary being $35,000 a year. He did not hold this position long for the Grand Trunk discovered how valuable he was after he was gone and he returned to his old position with increased salary and increased authority. Since then he has remained with the property.

INDEPENDENTS IN TELEPHONE FIGHT RAISE $150,000

Max Koehler, in Deposition, Says Fund Is Back of the Schweer Suit.

ARE FIGHTING MORGAN

Seek to Have Stock Bought by Bradley Turned Over to the Trust.

The independent telephone companies of the country have raised a fund of $150,000 to fight for their lives against the Bell Telephone Trust, according to Max Koehler in his testimony before Special Commissioner Zumbalen in the Schweer injunction suit Saturday.

Mr. Koehler testified that the independent companies feared the Bell Telephone Co. was acquiring their stocks to absorb them and make them a part of the combination and that a committee consisting of John A. Howard, president of the Continental Telephone and Telegraph Co., Herman Stifel and himself, was appointed to raise funds and bring suits to try to prevent it.

Mr. Koehler said the committee was bearing the expense of the Schweer suit, which is an application for an injunction against the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. of St. Louis and the Cleveland O., Trust Co., to restrain them from delivering to J. Pierpont Morgan the stock of the independent companies acquired by James S. Brailey and others.

Who Are Paying Bills.

He said $135,000 of the fund has already been paid in. The subscribing companies were the Independent Telephone Association, the Continental Telephone and Telegraph Co., the independent companies in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Virginia, the National Telephone Association, the Lincoln Telephone Co., the State Telephone Association of Nebraska, the Sioux City, Minneapolis, Detroit, Grand Rapids, Topeka, Joplin, Macon and St. Joseph independent companies.

Mr. Koehler has been active in the fight to prevent the absorption of the independent telephone companies by the Bell interests. The other witnesses at the hearing Saturday were Herman C. Stifel, who has been identified with Mr. Koehler in the fight against the Bell, and J. W. Otto, a stockholder of the United States Independent Co., and D. F. Dirks, a grocer of 2625 Juniata street, a plaintiff in one of the suits.

Mr. Dirks testified that the expense of the suit filed by him were to be paid out of the fund raised by the independent telephone companies.

Schweer, who appears in the suits as the instigator of the litigation to prevent the transfer of the independent telephone stocks to Morgan, testified that he knew nothing about the facts, was paying none of the expenses of the suits, and that he had signed the petitions at the request of other independent telephone stockholders.

Morgan Makes Affidavit.

Attorney Brown told a Post-Dispatch reporter that J. Pierpont Morgan had filed an affidavit in Cleveland stating he had bought the stock of the independent companies for an investment, and that he would transfer it to the Bell interests. The stock, Brown said, was paying 13 per cent dividend, and Morgan considered it a good investment.

The success of Schweer's suit, Mr. Brown said, would knock out a $10,000,000 deal, promoted by Morgan.

ST. CHARLES STREET FIRE.

Pufeles-Gans Cloak Co. Damaged by Smoke and Water.

The disastrous hotel fire on Sixth and St. Charles streets Friday morning, where a fireman lost his life, damaged the rear of Pufeles-Gans Cloak Co., located on Washington avenue to such an extent that thousands of dollars' worth of cloaks, suits, dresses and furs were injured by smoke and water. Messrs. Pufeles-Gans have adjusted their differences with the insurance company and announce in another page of this paper a great reduction sale in ladies' ready-to-wear apparel and furs on Monday morning. The prices they offer for the high-class merchandise which this firm carries will astound the public.

In their stock are hundreds of one-piece dresses, silk-lined coats, tailor-made suits and capes, which are so slightly damaged as to be scarcely noticeable. All will be offered at prices which will create intense interest among the women Monday morning.

WOMAN WHOSE STORY CAUSED POLICE BOARD TO DISCHARGE PATROLMAN

MRS. NORA WALLACE.

NORTH ST. LOUIS SHIPPERS HAVE EXPRESS FIGURES

Merchants and Manufacturers Have Long Been Fighting Arbitrary.

Business men of North St. Louis who have been clamoring for a year for the abolition of the express arbitrary will lay their grievances before the Missouri Railroad and Warehouse Commission at the hearing in the Pierce Building Jan. 24. Hundreds of merchants and manufacturers north of Salisbury street, the northern limit of free delivery, say they have been mulcted by the arbitrary charges of the express companies.

Albert E. Glauber, a merchant of 4832 North Broadway, chairman of the Retail Merchants' Committee of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association, with a membership of 1100, has been trying to induce the express companies to extend the limit of free delivery to 5300 North Broadway. The net result of the efforts of the Association was the extension of the free delivery zone from St. Louis avenue to Salisbury street, a distance of nine blocks.

"I shall be glad of an opportunity to appear before the Railroad and Warehouse Commission and explain our troubles," Glauber told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "The North St. Louis business men have been subjected to many hardships and inconveniences by this express arbitrary.

Packages Returned to Shippers.

"My own troubles began in the fall of 1907 when I refused to pay the city delivery charge and ordered a package sent back to the American Express Co. where I was to call for it. I forgot about it, and the company notified the consignor that I had refused to accept the package. This has happened repeatedly, causing me great delay and inconvenience.

"A New York house with which I do business took up the arbitrary question with the Merchants' Association of New York, hoping it might be able to prevail upon the general managers of the express companies to remove these unfair charges.

"The association was unable to do anything. I then laid the facts before the Attorney-General of Missouri. He suggested we make complaint to the Railroad Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission, and implied that if he found the arbitrary lines were fixed by agreement among the express companies he would proceed against them for violation of the anti-trust laws.

"Our association then took up the matter direct with the local express agents. When we mentioned that the Attorney-General advised us to lay the facts before the Railroad Commissioners, they laughed at us and said they had an injunction against them.

"The local agents also said they could do nothing without the consent of their superior officers. They suggested that we get statistics as to the amount of express business north of the Salisbury street dead line to be used as an argument to the superintendents for relief.

Shipments Costly and Slow.

"We have been getting this information. Many manufacturers and business men north of Salisbury street have express business of $100 a month or more.

"The American Paper Products Co. which has $100 a month express business told us that it was forced to send many of its packages by mail in order to avoid the arbitrary. The company stated that the arbitrary was working a great hardship on it and was interfering materially with its business. One of the most aggravating features is the delay. Many business houses are having their packages delayed several days by these unfair charges and conditions.

"I will bring up this matter at the meeting of the North St. Louis Business Men's Association before the Railroad Commission's hearing. I hope business men and citizens from all sections of the city will appear before the commission and appeal for the abolition of the arbitrary.

"The zone of free delivery in the West End extends to Hamilton avenue—5900, while it extends north to only 2800. I am satisfied there is much more express business in North St. Louis than there is in the West End, and that we are justly entitled to a free delivery in our section of the city."

How the Arbitrary Works.

An express company held a package of books shipped to Prof. A. Kengott of 6191 Delmar avenue from Nov. 17 until Jan. 4 because he would not pay the arbitrary for delivery. Finally the express company, on demand of the New York publishers who shipped the books, delivered them at the McKinley High School, but would not take them to the instructor's home.

A physician living on Julian avenue writes to the Post-Dispatch that a Christmas package expressed to him from Chicago reached him Jan. 4. He says the express companies excused themselves by pleading heavy Christmas traffic. The Postoffice, the physician says, was subjected to the same unusual traffic conditions during the holidays, and handled the business promptly.

"It was common practice during the holidays for the express companies to demand payment of charges even when the consignee could prove that they had been prepaid," said the physician. "For example, I refused to pay on three packages. The driver took them back. They were returned next day, in response to a demand. The companies will make proper rebate for overcharges, but this looks like a corporation making a customer make it a temporary loan and then forcing the customer to go to the express office to get his money back.

"I live in the free delivery district, but a box was brought to my house (one week late) on which the charges, 60 cents, had been prepaid. The driver demanded 85 cents—25 cents in addition to the original charges, and would not leave the box. It was returned to me the following day. If people would refuse to pay again on prepaid packages the express companies would be forced to correct these clerical oversights."

POLICEMAN IS DISMISSED ON WOMAN'S STORY

Special Officer Rogers' Case Occupies Board for a Long Session.

It took the Board of Police Commissioners almost as long to make up its mind to dismiss Special Officer George I. Rogers as it did to hear the testimony of the 10 witnesses in the case. Rogers was charged with having abused and mistreated Mrs. Nora Wallace, who conducts a rooming house at 1115 and 1117 Pine street and the strong alibi he presented raised a doubt in the minds of the Commissioners who deliberated for an hour before rendering their verdict.

Rogers, who was on the staff of Chief of Detectives Smith, was accused of having stopped Mrs. Wallace and a New Year's watch party of which she was a member on Pine street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, and after criticising Mrs. Wallace for having her 13-year-old daughter on the street at 1 a. m., placed her under arrest. When she resisted, it was claimed, he handled her roughly and finally released her after admonishing her to keep her child off the streets.

POLICE DIG FOR MORE BODIES IN ROBBER TUNNEL

Evidence That Man Who Lost His Life Under Street Had Confederates.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The 20 laborers who yesterday uncovered the body of Isaac Finkelstein in the Ludlow street tunnel which he had dug with a view to reaching the millions of the Fountenth street bank, were back at their work again this morning for the police are not satisfied that the tunneler was alone when he met his death.

The police are confident that there were others in the plan to rob the bank and the nearby jewelry store and one or more of the confederates, they think, may have perished with Finkelstein in the cave-in. So today the police ordered the work taken up where the department of buildings left it yesterday. Finkelstein's narrow shaft will be followed to its end.

There have been further developments which seem, the police say, to bear out their belief that several persons were involved in the plot. An anonymous note received last night by Zirinsky, the jeweler, may be an important clue. It is pencilled in a forced backhand on a common postal card and bears the postmark of a sub-station only a few blocks from Ludlow street. It reads:

"If the company will dig in front of your store on Ludlow street side in the candy stand about seven feet away and dig down about five feet you will find the man and his helper. I know they are both dead. It is all over and we can't do the job."

When Zirinsky turned the postal card over to the police he announced also that the wiring of the electric devices protecting his safes and windows had been tampered with. They were out of order, the police found, on account of a break at the point where they entered the cellar.

rooms, through their abuse, came to be."

Leniency Asked of Creecy.

Chief Creecy received two letters Saturday on the subject, one a courteously worded inquiry whether a euchre announced for Feb. 8 at 1927 South Jefferson avenue, for the benefit of the sick fund of a fraternal order, would violate his rule. The Chief said he would consider the matter and send a reply.

The other letter, an anonymous one, took the Chief to task for disregarding as the writer declared, the decisions of courts that progressive games are not gambling, and for making a distinction in favor of church and charity euchres. The Chief said the last criticism was based on a misapprehension. He said he did not intend to discriminate in favor of any class of public euchres, but that he had ordered the gambling squad to deal with them all alike.

Several letters have reached the Post-Dispatch, protesting against Chief Creecy's order. One, written by a woman, complains of the hardship to be wrought on "poor women who are painting china and earning an honest living."

Unlike the Betting Ring.

Another, who signs his initials "Mr. J. A. P.," argues that going to a euchre party or paying a fixed admission does not constitute gambling, any more than going to a racetrack and paying admission at the gate. "There is no gambling," he writes, "until a wager is made on some horse. And at a euchre party there are no wagers made, and no one loses anything. The sum paid for admission is not too much to pay for an afternoon's entertainment, and is not considered a loss by those who do not win prizes."

Others suggest that clubs, on the pattern of lid clubs, be formed to evade the Chief's order.

Former Lieutenant-Governor Charles P. Johnson, framer of the Johnson gambling law, declared Saturday the police had no right to raid euchre games in the manner proposed by Chief of Police Creecy.

"The police have no right to raid any house," said former Lieutenant-Governor Johnson to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "merely on suspicion that a misdemeanor is being committed.

If Raided, Johnson Would Sue.

"If policemen invaded my home in any such manner, to break up a game of cards, I would sue the police officials who directed the raid, and the Police Commissioners responsible for their action.

"The Johnson law makes it a felony to conduct a gambling house as a vocation, and such houses can be raided, but it is ridiculous to treat euchre games as gambling, and no jury will hold that they are such."

Better Chase Thieves, He Declares.

"But the police hold that euchre games where admission is charged are public gambling places," Mr. Johnson was reminded.

"Yes," he replied, "they seem to think it would be a terrible thing to permit some poor woman to make $4 or $5 in that manner. They would better look after the burglars and violent criminals and do some of the police work that the city really needs.

POLICE VIOLATE LAW DAILY BY OPPRESSION, SAYS GOV. JOHNSON

THE St. Louis Police Department seems to go farther every day in acts of petty interference with the amusements and diversions of the people. They are emulating the acts of the French constabulary in the days of the Reign of Terror.

"They teach policemen jiu-jitsu, and then send them out to compel people, who are suffering from the cold, to perform the impossible task of cleaning the ice off sidewalks.

"The police violate the law in their own acts every day. They are constantly doing unnecessary and oppressive things."—Statement by former Lieutenant-Governor Charles P. Johnson.

DYSPEPSIA, GAS, HEARTBURN AND ALL MISERY IN YOUR STOMACH VANISHES.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 32-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there's left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

"CLEANING UP" IN KANSAS CITY.

The situation in Kansas City is, as usual, involved, intricate and interesting. The lay mind cannot easily grasp it. But there are certain phases of affairs there which appeal as simply as strongly. We learn, for instance, that Gov. Hadley's police commissioners, when they took office last April, found a "disorganized and inefficient police department" and they proceeded at once "to correct these conditions."

They revoked saloon licenses, disciplined saloon keepers and removed objectionable policemen. They went over the registration lists, found innumerable crimes against the election laws and thousands of illegal voters, had a grand jury look into the matter and so thoroughly "cleaned up" that the Republicans claim the victory in both special elections held since April. Kansas City, it is proudly proclaimed, has been made a Republican city.

This is no small achievement. It isn't every police commission that can change the political complexion of a big city in nine months. It required effort, patience, perseverance and cleverness. There isn't a saloon keeper left in Kansas City who won't dance when the commissioners threaten to shoot.

Another result of this exclusive devotion to the great task of securing honest elections and Republican victories we find in the Kansas City Star, which says:

"The loafing places of toughs, white and black, should be closed. * * * The way to do this is to see that no men willingly idle are allowed freedom in the city, and to weed out the resorts where the thugs and plug-uglies assemble. The police already have made a start along this line in the raids made early last month. But the events of the last few days have shown impressively that this is the time for drastic action. It is up to the police. They can clean up the town."

A few days ago a Texas county was notified that bonds issued by that civil division of the State would not be accepted, although it was acknowledged that the security was first rate, the reason being that financiers did not like the Texas policies. According to a widely diffused rumor, Mr. Morgan has given the same notice to the President of the United States with reference to the $100,000,000 Panama bond issue. Was it for the same reason?

A LITERARY WINTER.

This is the winter of literature, the kind of winter which, being common in New England, has been duly celebrated as the real and only article by the writers of that region.

And it has come to be accepted, conventionally, all over the country, so that Christmas stories written by Florida and Southern California geniuses must be full of snow and Aurora Borealis, else the reading public won't have them.

Little boys and girls should remember this winter, because most of them will never again see one as duly certified by literature.

Gay young blades should take care what they write to the present incumbent, for love letters don't always look well or sound well in print. For instance, how can Frank Gould tell the next one she is the only one he ever loved? His activities are severely restricted by recent publications.

TRIAL FOR CRIME.

"There is no nation in Europe, outside of Russia and the Balkan Peninsula, whose criminal laws are as ineffective as those of the United States of America."

That is the sweeping statement of William Dudley Foulke of the Indiana bar. The array of facts by which he sustains it, the argument he draws from it and the suggestions he offers as to remedies and reforms, will be published in an instructive article in the Magazine Section of the Post-Dispatch on Sunday. It should be read by every person interested in the administration of justice.

The criminal law of the United States in itself is as near perfect as that of any other country. It is perhaps as humane and as wise as any that could be designed and applied in the existing stage of civilization. Its ineffectiveness lies wholly in the processes by which it is enforced; or rather, in the legal processes by which its enforcement is evaded. Our system of procedure in criminal trials is, in fact, about the worst known to civilization. It prevents rather than provides punishment for crime, and as a consequence actually tends in many respects to defeat the very justice it was designed to uphold.

Mr. Foulke suggests no less than six reforms as necessary to give efficiency to the law. These are too long to be adequately reviewed here. They should be carefully considered. It suffices to say they amount virtually to a complete recasting of our system of criminal procedure. Of the importance of some such sweeping reform there can be no doubt. The prevalence of crime and of lynch law, which in itself is crime, attest the need of some more effective method of punishing criminals and safeguarding society.

MR. TAFT'S INNOVATION.

Mr. Taft's message marks the beginning of a new era in the business life of the nation. For the first time there is made a purposeful recommendation of a law which will recognize the right of combination. The President has surrendered to the trust idea.

Since 1890, when the Sherman anti-trust law went into effect, combinations in restraint of trade and monopolistic enterprises have been unlawful. Now it is the official view that combination may be and usually is a money-saving movement, necessary to economical production and with incidental monopoly permissible to some degree. The stifling of competition and the deliberate exercise of monopolistic power is, however, "contrary to the public good," undesirable and unlawful.

To make what has been unlawful and morally wrong lawful is not, however, the administration's task. Mr. Taft has labored to devise a scheme which would permit the retention of what is economically good and effectively prevent what is morally wrong. His plan is cleverly devised. It involves an invasion of the rights of states, but the satisfactory elimination of the great abuses is considered to warrant the invasion. A Federal charter, with complete supervision, including security issues, by the Department of Commerce and Labor is the remedy. Failure on the part of the trusts to take advantage of such an opportunity will win immediate investigation by a grand jury of all corporations under suspicion.

Thus effective Government control will be brought about. This is the Taft anti-trust program—the joint work of trained lawyers who have devoted months of study to the problem whose solution is of almost supreme economic, financial and social as well as political importance.

The President's ideas as to the control of railroads are based on even more deliberation not only by himself and his official advisers, but by the railroad presidents whose views are found reflected in the message. The adoption of his recommendations would leave the Interstate Commerce Commission free of much of the work which now falls on it and give it larger control of rates and more time to devote to this task. The inhibition asked to prevent one railroad's owning stock in a competing line need not be regarded too seriously. It could be too easily avoided. But the control of security issues would be a death blow to stock watering. The ideas advanced deserve serious consideration by Congress, on which will devolve the ultimate formulation of the practical details of the scheme.

In taking the appointment of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee out of his hands the majority of the House expressed its lack of confidence in Speaker Cannon. Wouldn't his resignation become the Czar?

WESTERN ENERGY OF PROGRESS.

In a New York lecture last Monday, Prof. Charles Zueblin, formerly of the Chicago University, pointed out some of the differences between the Eastern and Western regions of the United States.

The West, he says, is characterized by a spirit of spontaniety for which he looks in vain in the East. And he illustrates by saying that the senators from Idaho and Nevada exert more brain than all the senators from New York and New England combined. The Eastern men are quite as well endowed as the Western, but their brains don't work with fresh, vigorous purpose.

These are striking statements and we need not accept them without qualification. But between the East and the West there is the difference between a community with established and settled social, industrial conditions, and one in which nothing is settled and all minds are alert not to preserve, but to possess and to improve.

Such economic and social differences are reflected in the minds of the leading men. It is not strange that men who represent states which have fought and won the battle through a long struggle of a century should be opposed to innovation and reluctant to experiment. Nor is it wonderful that representative men in the states where constructive work is only just beginning are daring, inventive, quick to seize advantage and eager to make a national policy which looks rather to progress than to a satisfied content with what has been acquired. We need both types of society and both types of men.

Mr. Pinchot was guilty of insubordination and the President had to discharge him, but it is better to be a man than an obedient subordinate.

POLITICS IS POLITICS.

Boston's first non-partisan election will be held next week. The campaign has been lively since the nominating petitions were filed to disclose four candidates—not Republican, Democratic, Prohibition, Independent or Socialist or anything like that. Boston has put such things far behind her.

With partisanship eliminated all issues foreign to municipal affairs have been eliminated, too. The whole political atmosphere has been clarified. Discussion, first confined to municipal issues, later grew to the greater significance of the relative personal qualities of the four candidates.

Boston has discussed these qualities with cultured thoroughness. It is difficult for a party-ridden people to appreciate fully the advantages of a campaign perfectly denuded of diverting issues and extraneous politics. But this has been Boston's privilege. As a result of the microscopic examination of the personal records and abilities of the four men, Boston has the satisfaction of knowing that her next Mayor, by her own cheerfully given testimony, will be either a plutocrat, a grafter, a thief or a liar. Happy Boston!

A Chicago beef packer, with a 14 per cent dividend in his pocket, advises the people to eat chuck roasts and round steaks, thus beginning the work of creating a demand which will justify a raise in prices and bring dividends to 20 per cent.

Perhaps Norman Mack thinks the Democrats he declines to meet at Kansas City today are not Democrats. What is Mack's definition of a Democrat?

If Mr. Taft is the cook and the captain bold and both houses of Congress, what is Mr. Morgan?

Mrs. John H. Curran tells Marguerite Martyn that the women can and will save this country and save it with propriety. This is comforting news. Better not save it at all if it can't be done with propriety.

The year is young yet, but New Mexico is already to the front with the story of a man killing 13 bears in one cave. We now await news from Central Africa.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Origin of National Songs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We disagree with Miss Phoebe Cozens in her objection to "Dixie" as a national air. It is true it had an humble origin, emanating from negro minstrels, but many of our best melodies can boast of no aristocratic lineage. The words of "Star Spangled Banner" are adapted to a French drinking song. "Suwanee River" and "Master's in the Cold, Cold Ground," and most all of Foster's music were first heard in minstrel troupes and taverns and it took several years for them to reach the drawing rooms of good society. "John Brown's Body' is an old temperance revival hymn sung on the plantations of Mississippi years before John Brown's raid took place. It was sung to the words, "Old Mr. Whisky, You Have Killed Many a Man." After the raid and execution of Brown, the negroes adapted the present words. When the Federal soldiers captured Natchez they used to hear the hymn and recognizing in it a good marching air quickly adopted it; their music bands took it up and spread its fame all over the country and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe wrote her magnificent "Hymn to the Republic" and this old temperance revival hymn bids fair to become a permanent feature of our music love.

Let "Dixie" be tried on its merits and not as it was derived. (Lincoln was very fond of hearing it played.) Wesley the great hymn writer, when criticised for some of his adaptations of the airs from tavern drinking songs, replied that he did not propose to let Satan have a monopoly of all the best tunes.

JUNIATA.

Clean All Sidewalks.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In regard to cleaning of snow and ice from sidewalks, what Chief Creecy ought to attend to first is to enforce the law compelling owners of property not rented and owners of vacant lots to clean their sidewalks, which never are cleaned from one season to the other. They are rich and quite able to, and many first-floor tenants have all they can do to get along during the winter months.

A DAILY READER.

Pinchot Doesn't Understand.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Some one should take Mr. Gifford Pinchot aside and explain matters to him. He has doubtless been so engaged in the duties of his late office that he has not had time to understand the scheme of the Republican administration. Such pernicious activity is unbecoming in a good Republican officeholder. Having promised the Railroad Barons that there will be no adverse legislation and having already taken care of the Tariff Barons, it now becomes the administration to take care of the Smelter Barons who operate in the Western country and the gift to them of a billion dollars' worth of coal lands in Alaska is nothing more than just and right in view of the billions that the Tariff Barons will take from the pockets of the people under the lately enacted tariff legislation.

Mr. Pinchot thinks the public domain belongs to the people—that is true, but when the System wants any part of it it has been customary in the past for the Republican administrations to turn over to them such parts as they deem of advantage to take. It really seems pitiful that Mr. Pinchot should make such a hue and cry over the gift of those coal lands to the Smelter Trust when their value is trifling compared with the billions taken from the people by the tariff. What does the System support the Republican party for?

If this matter is properly explained to Mr. Pinchot he will subside at once if he is a good Republican—if he is an insurgent in the Republican ranks he is no better than a Democrat and should be thrown out.

JAMES T. ROBERTS.

City Should Set Example.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was very much amused at the order from Chief of Police Creecy that the downstairs tenants must clean their sidewalks. I live near the Magnolia Avenue Police Station and I would be willing to wager that in front of this building is the slickest place in St. Louis. Around Lafayette Park, Tower Grove Park and Water Tower Park the ice is still on the pavements, and I see no attempt to clean them. I would like for some one to tell me how to clean the ice from sidewalks in this kind of weather. I noticed a man on Arsenal street who was trying to clean his walk and he had broken the concrete from his steps. I have tried salt and that did not melt the ice because the sun was not shining hot enough, and the only thing that I see that anyone can do is to put ashes on them.

I think if Chief Creecy would drive around and look at some of the police stations, city parks, etc., that he would withdraw his order.

MAGNOLIA AVENUE.

Foresees an Oligarchy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

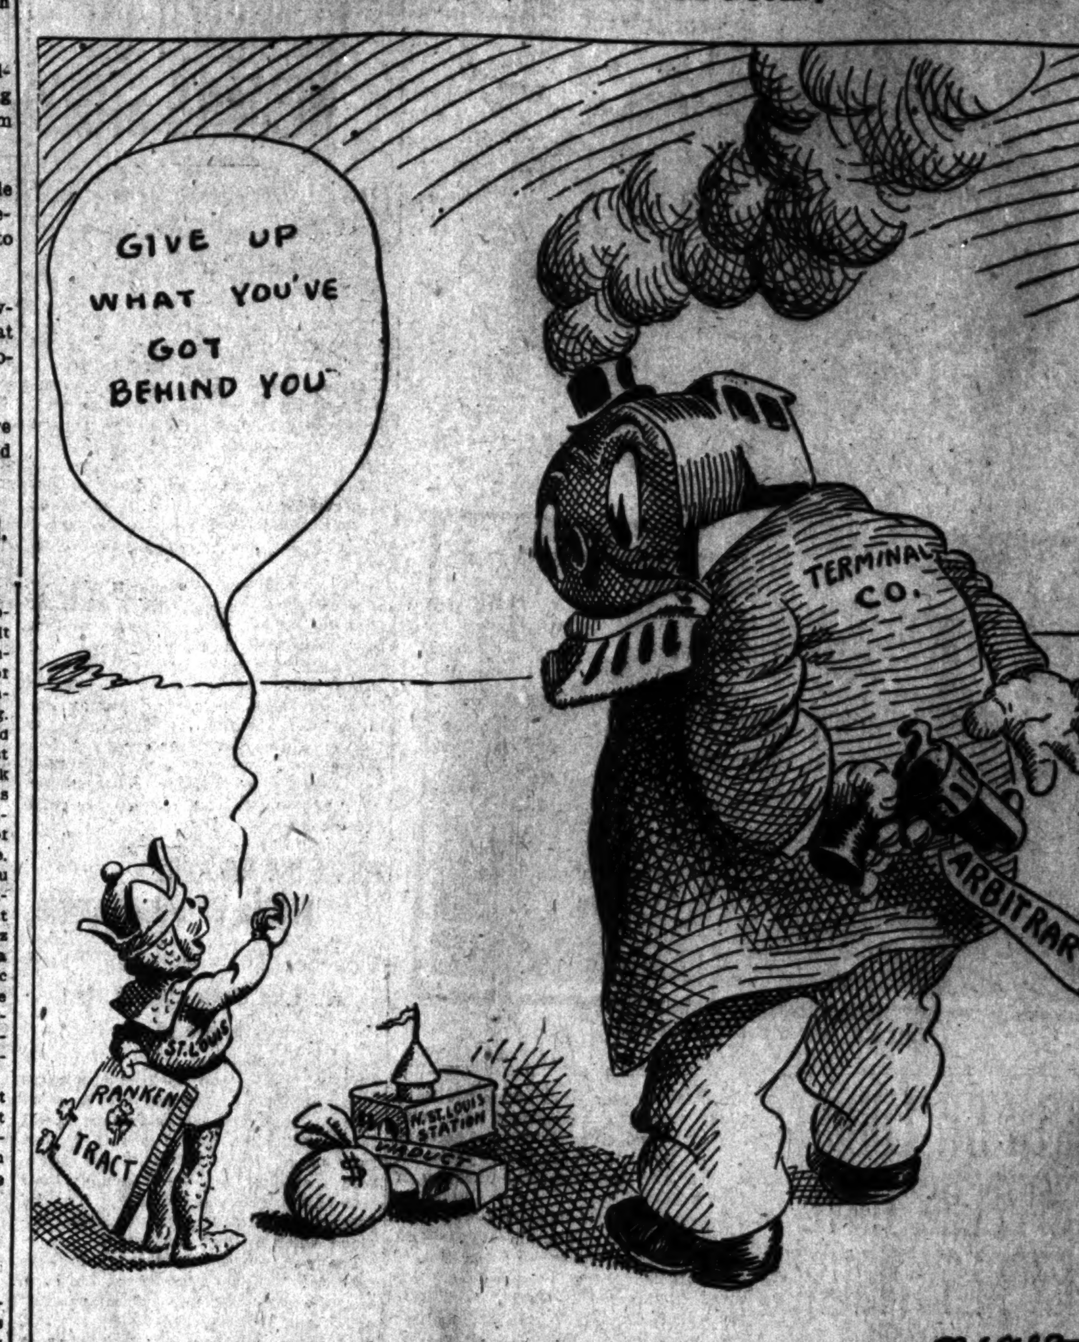

Today in New York three financial institutions of no mean power, through their respective boards, are paying homage of serfdom to their new czar. The financial chronicles of the past few days have informed the public that Mr. Morgan has obtained control of the greatest accumulation of capital in the world. A casual glance at the statement will elicit no comment except that it was the master stroke of a financial genius toward consolidation of the world's most powerful weapon—money.

But upon analysis the situation is one of grave apprehension; by this arbitrary dictatorship this newly created czar can practically rule the Government through indirect means, such as enactment of favorable laws for his holdings or rejection of hurtful measures. It lies in his power to engineer panics, create or suppress wars, crush Wall street and hold in check the prosperity of the country—all through the medium of money that the people have deposited in the banks, invested in securities or reserved in the insurance funds of the "Big Four." A study of the corporations and holding companies he now controls will show that practically all the principal industries and their affiliations are concerned. A Harriman, a Rogers or a Ryan compared to this new star of the first magnitude appear as mere satellites; and yet they were hailed as the world's greatest money factors!

It will eventually resolve itself into a state of conditions (and the writer is not a Socialist) where the powers of the land will be governed by a few to the detriment of millions of others who will be forced to act in accordance with the wishes of the powers behind the throne of money.

JUNIUS.

A LITTLE BIT MORE.

GOV. HUGHES' RESPONSIBILITY.

From the New York World.

Regardless of the distinction he makes, Gov. Hughes' message will be hailed with delight by all the interests that oppose an income tax. They will promptly fall in behind the Governor of New York to safeguard the precious principle of State rights. Wall street is always for State rights when there is any money in it, and always believes in a strong central government when the balance of profit swings in that direction. It will turn Gov. Hughes' message, his arguments, his influence and his great reputation to its own account in every State capital in which there is a chance to prevent the ratification of the amendment.

If this amendment to the Constitution of the United States is defeated, a larger measure of responsibility will rest upon Charles E. Hughes than upon any other one citizen of the country.

TO BEAT CANNON AND ALDRICH.

From the Springfield, (Mo.), Leader.

Cannon and Aldrich are effects, not causes. People who disagree with them simply disagree with the controlling party. Both are loyal Republicans who never join insurrections, no matter what the party does, and are leaders who are relied on to do things.

Nevertheless, they are unpopular in the West, but this unpopularity should not take the mistaken course of denouncing Cannon and Aldrich personally and then sending to Congress men who believe as they do and follow them. To denounce Aldrich and Cannon in Missouri won't hurt either of them very much in Illinois and Rhode Island, where they seem to be highly esteemed. Those who would change the Aldrich-Cannon policy should vote for Democrats for Congress.

ICE GERMS.

Written for the Post-Dispatch.

The fairies came from fairyland,
In the wet and wintry night,
And painted trees and shrubbery
A sparkling, dazzling white.

On bough and twig they hung bright gems,
That glistened in the air,
The fairies danced about in glee,
And, laughing, left them there.

The morning sun peeped out and saw
Each glistening, pendant gem;
Then turned a burning gaze on all,
And quickly melted them.

C. C. A.

A PEACEMAKER.

From Country Life in America.

It is a commonly accepted belief that nothing short of being pried loose will induce a bulldog to give up his grip on another dog or on an intruder; but this is a mistake. A little household ammonia poured on him—as near his nose as circumstances will allow—will make him let go immediately. The fumes of ammonia are so overpowering that a dog cannot possibly maintain his grip and his breath at the same time.

$500,000,000 SMOKE DAMAGE.

In an address before the American Civic Association, Herbert M. Wilson, chief engineer in the United States Geological Survey, places the annual damages and waste by smoke in the United States at $500,000,000 in the large cities alone, or about $6 to each man, woman and child of the population.

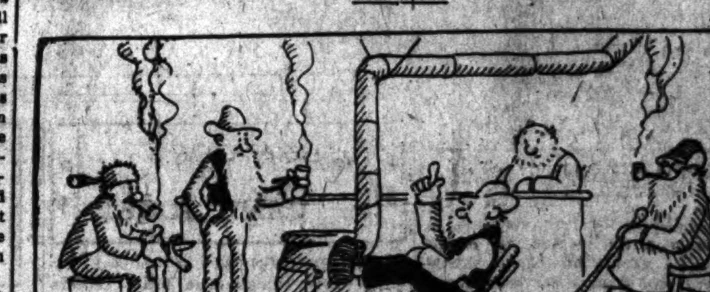

JOB FOR CONGRESS.

From the Nashville (Tenn.) Journal.

Undoubtedly President Ingalls of the "Big Four" stated a lamentable fact when he observed: "Up to this time we have not framed a law which punishes anybody for being a damned fool." Consequently the merry little toy pistol and the joyous cannon cracker may be depended upon to help the Foolkiller fatten his average.

JUST A MINUTE.

IN THE BALD KNOB LECTURE COURSE.

"MY frien's," said Mr. Antwine, "there is a good deal of discussion one way an' another in this country whether Mr. Taft is makin' good. Th' concensus of opinion, I believe, is that he is not, in which dilemma your Uncle Antwine heartily sympathizes with Mr. Taft.

"The simple truth is that William Howard Taft come into th' presidency of this republic at a time when it is a good deal easier to rattle aroun' in the job than it has been at any time since our particular scheme of gover'ment was launched.

"The presidency was consid'rably amplified by Mr. Roosevelt. He occupied it for seven years, an' he put in the most of that time kickin' it wider, buttin' it bigger, makin' curves of corners, an' in one manner an' another bulgin' it at the bottom, pushin' it out at the sides, an' what you might call domin' the top.

"The result was that by the time he retired he had so far increased the capacity of the job that men who had once comfortably filled it would have rattled aroun' in it like a pea in a coal bucket had they by any chance been restored to the seat of power. Nor was this a whim of Mr. Roosevelt's. He was growin' hisself all them seven years, an' every time the job pinched him he cut loose an' added somethin' handsome to its total possible content.

"This, then, was the luck of Mr. Taft. What had been a comparatively easy place to fill had to become jes' before he got it like a look over the edge of the world. It was a leap into space, an' Mr. Taft has been bouncin' aroun' in it ever since. He hits the bottom one day, an' the top the next. So did the next man after Alexander, the unfortunate who was immediately preceded by Julius Caesar, an' the man who went on at one side of the stage as the first Napoleon stepped off at the other.

"Mr. Taft is, in my opinion, doin' about as good as could be expected under the circumstances. He is simply lost in one o' them large vacuums which hist'ry causes at infrequent periods for the fun of dumpin' av'rage men into 'em. Agreein' on which, we will have cider on the storekeeper, cheese on the elder Dabbs, an' crackers by the Hon. Elihu Dinks."

EXPLANATION.

311 T. A.—We know of no place where a girl may be an enlisted soldier of the United States Army, wearing a uniform. She might "lead the life of a soldier," unenlisted, but she might be arrested for appearing in male attire.

TIG. PIL.—The negroes imported on the White Horse (the first slaver sent out from New York for the direct slave trade with Africa) were sold at auction for an average price of $125 each for the choice stock. One schooner cargo of 217 slaves brought $77,469.

A. B.—Women have sold the furniture without husband's knowledge, and husband has sold furniture without wife's knowledge, and there has been no redress, so far as we know, for either. If wife bought it with her own money she can get it again. An old lawyer says that ordinarily the furniture belongs to the husband, he being the head of the family.

E. M.—To take out paint. Equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will take paint out of clothing, no matter how dry or hard it may be. Saturate the spot two or three times, then wash out in soap suds. If turpentine (in removing grease or paint) leaves a ring, dip the spot in water softened with soda; dip up and down, rinse well and press on wrong side while still damp.

H. R. B.—Though Flagler was a good husband, he is said to have caused a bill to pass the Florida Legislature making incurable insanity a ground for divorce. Under the new law a divorce was given him. Insanity is ground for divorce in the District of Columbia, Idaho, Iowa, Maine, North Dakota, South Dakota, Pennsylvania, Utah, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming.

A. S.—"Xmas" is a poor word for Christmas, but it is not as absurd as it may appear. The letter "X," although we pronounce it just as we pronounce the letter that looks like it in our English alphabet, is not "X." It is the Greek letter chi. It has the force of our own "ch," or rather of the German "ch," being decidedly guttural. This letter "X," or chi, was the first letter of the Greek verb "chrio," to anoint. The adjective formed from that verb is "Christos," or "anointed." "The Anointed" was the title of Jesus. He was the Christ. We may easily see how "Xmas" is an abbreviated form, through the Greek language, for Christmas.

S.—Laureate is the poet officially invested with the title of laureate by the crown of England. Originally the title implied service, as the writing of an ode for the King's birthday, but the office is now honorary. In former times a laureate was a poet publicly crowned with laurel in recognition of his merits; a student receiving a degree in poetry and rhetoric was so crowned. Sometimes, a laureate is the person who gains the Prix de Rome in the art schools of Rome and Paris. The laurel is an evergreen shrub of the Mediterranean region. There is also a laurel of the United States.

E. E. W.—Whatever makes for the general health does the voice good. No purely cultural methods act specifically upon it. Spraying the throat with cold water will help. So will the wet pack, applied to the throat and covered in with dry towels. It is useful to read short sentences very loudly, after taking a deep breath. While doing this the chin should be raised and the head be thrown slightly back. Sometimes a more highly pitched voice than has been usual to the person can be cultivated. It is essential to avoid the nasal twang.

YOUNG HOUSEKEEPER.—Cleaning furniture: First, dust it well. If it is of a dull finish, dip flannel cloth in turpentine and wipe entire surface thoroughly. Then wipe again with clean cloth. After going over all the furniture, go over it again with a flannel dipped in wax which has been melted to a liquid stage. Take care to use wax sparingly, but be sure to cover the furniture well. Finally, give a thorough rubbing with an old kid glove or piece of chamois skin. If furniture is polished, first give a good dusting. Then go over with an oiled flannel. After this wash with a warm soap suds. Dry and polish with a polish made of one pint of boiled linseed oil, one pint of white varnish and one-half pint of turpentine. When dry rub well with chamois.

W. L.—One definition of woman is, Womanly character or qualities taken together, as gentleness, tenderness, compassion, modesty. Another is, An adult human female. A lady is defined as a refined and well-bred woman. The word is also used as a term of courteous address and is often applied to any well-dressed woman. It became so much the custom to speak of women of no refinement or good qualities as ladies that the word woman is now often used in preference, just as man is preferred to "gentleman," which has been promiscuously applied to everything in trousers. George Eliot says, "A fine lady is a squirrel-headed thing, with small airs and small notions." Post-Dispatch prize definitions of lady: 1. A true lady is always gentle and considerate to inferiors as well as equals, fears God and sees good in all, thinks no evil and knows none. His Philosophy, Overheard for the Post-Dispatch

By W. H. JAMES.

Man wanted to give me New York exchange this morning. When I refused it he asked if a draft would do. "All right," he said, "ride downtown on a street car and you'll get it." What did he mean?

They're building subways everywhere, now. Seems to me they're running things in the ground.

I've been riding on the cars a long time and I never have figured out why a woman wears the pin in the back of her collar upside down.

Have looked all through the market reports and cyclopedias and I can't learn where the imitation colts are raised. It's a long coat that has no lining and life's only a skin game, anyway.

No matter how pretty a girl may be it hurts just the same when she steps on your pet corn.

There is no reason for a war scare. Haven't we got the biggest standing army in the world? If you don't believe it ride downtown on a car in the morning and try to count 'em.

I don't mind hanging on a strap any more than I'd mind hanging on a rope. If it were not for the exercise I get on the cars I wouldn't be strong enough to clean snow off my sidewalk and tend the furnace.

Soft words butter no parsnips and the man with the straps gathers more nickels than the man with the long-handled basket. Go to church some time and see.

OLD GRIMES.

Subject Was a Slave and Author a Senator.

YALE men, in particular, sang "Old Grimes" for three generations without knowing anything about its origin. Dwight C. Kilburn of Litchfield, Conn., in preparing a legal history of his county, clears up the "Old Grimes" mystery, says the New York Press. Around the law school which flourished at Litchfield a century and more ago was William Grimes, a runaway slave, who was servant to the students. Some of the Southern students informed upon him, and his master took steps to recover the slave, but Grimes' freedom was bought for him, and he moved to New Haven, where he was servant to the Yale boys. Albert G. Green, who afterward became United States Senator, used to make rhymes when he was a student upon anything at any occasion. Grimes begged Green to write some poetry for him, and the future Senator gave him "Old Grimes."

We ne'er shall see him more;
He used to wear a long black coat
All buttoned down before.

His heart was open as the day,
His feelings all were true;
His hair was some inclined to gray—
He wore it in a queue.

Whene'er he heard the voice of pain
His breast with pity burned;
The large round head upon his cane
From ivory was turned.

Kind words he ever had for all,
He knew no base design;
His eyes were dark and rather small,
His nose was aquiline.

He lived in peace with all mankind,
In friendship he was true;
His coat had pocket holes behind,
His pantaloons were blue.

But good old Grimes is now at rest,
Nor fears misfortune's frown;
He wore a double-breasted vest,
The stripes ran up and down.

He modest merit sought to find
And pay it its desert;
He had no malice in his mind,
No ruffles on his shirt.

His neighbors he did not abuse,
Was sociable and gay;
He wore large buckles on his shoes,
And changed them every day.

Thus undisturbed by anxious cares,
His peaceful moments ran,
And everybody said he was
A fine old gentleman.

AN AWAKENING

MR. and Mrs. Peterby were sitting on their piazza. It was late afternoon and the sun was making his final preparation to gild the western heavens. Peterby sat in mute admiration.

"Did you ever see such a superb sunset?" he exclaimed, rapturously. "It is simply wonderful! Amazing!"

Mrs. Peterby did not join in his enthusiasm. She shifted uneasily in her chair.

"You would think anything was good," she replied. "You've just had a good dinner. But it's just an ordinary sunset, nothing more."

"Where are you going?" asked Peterby. "Why can't you sit still? Just like a woman. No artistic appreciation."

"I'll be back presently," replied Mrs. Peterby.

Four or five minutes passed. She came back and sat down. There was a silence.

"It is beautiful," whispered Mrs. Peterby. "Don't think I ever saw a finer sunset. See that exquisite coloring off there—and those feather effects. Perfectly lovely!"

Peterby turned his face slowly and gazed at her.

"What did you do in the house just now," he asked.

Mrs. Peterby's face beamed.

"Why," she replied, "the cook was going to leave, but she told me she would stay another month."—Success.

THE GOLDEN AGE

"IN THE matter of strength, a man's power begins to decline at the expiration of his thirty-first year," said Ramon Serves, a physical instructor of Bremen, Germany, to the Washington Post.

"The muscles of the human body, according to all authorities, have their periods of development and decline. Our physical strength increases up to a certain age and decreases thereafter. Strength statistics show that the lifting power of a youth of 17 is 280 pounds. In his twentieth year it increases to 320 pounds, and in the thirtieth and thirty-first years it reaches its height, 365 pounds. At the expiration of the thirty-first year the strength begins to decline, very gradually at first. By the time 40 years has been reached it has decreased eight pounds, and diminution continues at a slightly increasing rate until the fiftieth year is reached, when the lifting power averages 320 pounds. Subsequent to this period the strength falls more and more rapidly, until the weakness of old age is reached.

"There is no reason, in my opinion, why the greatest strength should not be maintained until after a man has reached 45 or 50 years of age. The trouble is that we have been living at too rapid a pace. The average life of man, instead of three-score and ten, should be 100 years. Our youth are dissipating too much, and our young men neglect their physical condition in their struggle to get on in the business world, while our middle-aged and older men are leading too strenuous a life mentally. We pay too little attention to our physical welfare, and the result is we are decreasing instead of increasing the average length of life."

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

SLEEPLESSNESS is caused by many things. The brain centers and nerves, through trouble, exertion or excitement, refuse to decrease their activity and consciousness is retained through the night hours.

In the first place, the use of stimulants in the night time should be abandoned by those who are inclined to be sleepless. Many hours of nervousness and restlessness can be traced to a tiny cup of coffee, which can never counteract, by its momentary pleasure, the lost hours of sleep.

Frequently the brain is too active, due to an overcharged condition of the blood vessels. Bathe the base of the neck with cold water. This ice bath will drive any extra blood away from the cerebral centers and may be all that is necessary to close your eyes, says the Chicago Tribune.

Just before retiring, a gentle, soothing massage sometimes produces wonderful results. Massage at the back of the neck by placing the fingers at the base of the skull and pressing lightly, moving them around and around. The arms, neck and shoulders should be rubbed with olive oil; a sleepy feeling results from the motion and the oil is particularly calming to the nerves of the skin.

A slow rotary motion of the head is another excellent way to produce drowsiness. Stand straight and swing the head in a circle slowly; half close the eyes. You will feel a half lazy, dreaming sensation which will soothe the mind and pave the way for sleep.

Warm milk is especially good. A glass of this just before retiring is a reliable and efficacious dose. Do not have the milk too hot, and be sure to sip it slowly, for indigestion will result if it is gulped down.

In winter it is sometimes conducive to sleep to take a warm bath before going to sleep; warm baths are soothing to the nervous system. If after this final treatment the fragrance of balsam rises from a special pillow, sleep will generally come.

PERHAPS of all our possessions either personal or commercial, the Filipinos like our shoes best. In their estimation it may be said the shoes come next to independence, says Monroe Wolley in The Bookkeeper. Natives have been known to go hungry in order to sport a pair of Oxfords with military heels, bulldog toes, and big bow laces. The price was the only thing displeasing about our shapely footwear. The customs laws were indicted for the fault. Yet the price rarely interfered where physical endeavor would result in the ownership of a pair of attractive zapatos Americano. Still, it was claimed that many a longing native could not raise $5 (which looks much bigger when reduced to the equivalent in pesos), to adorn his little brown tootsie-wootsies.

It is no uncommon sight to see great crowds of natives from all walks of life, from the rich and lordly to the ordinary, bare-foot housboy, standing before an American shoe store for hours gazing with wistful eyes upon the tempting display of footwear from the greatest shoemaking nation on earth.

FLOATS IN WATER AND FINDS STARS IN THE MILKY WAY

AT the Harvard University Observatory a gigantic telescope floats in a tank of water. It is one of the largest in the world, the reflecting mirror being five feet wide, says the National Magazine. Mounted on a watertight cylindrical steel float, the telescope swings in a concrete tank full of water, only slightly larger than the cylinder, which is designed to fit it closely and serve as a pivot for the telescope, instead of having it mounted on a solid base.

Machinery at each side holds and guides it. The water bears the weight, and the movements of the telescope are regulated by tiny electric motors; the gigantic mirror can be easily removed and resilvered when it grows dim, although two tons are indicated when it is placed on the scales.

Through this telescope stars of the sixteenth and eighteenth magnitude are revealed, and it seems to penetrate into the very abyss of the heavens. While the instrument is mounted in the open air, the image is reflected to an eyepiece in an adjoining building, where the astronomer sits and makes calculations in which millions of miles are dealt with as indifferently as the simplest sums in ordinary bookkeeping.

The first look through a great telescope is disappointing, but the novice soon sees that the flat appearance which the heavens present to the naked eye is replaced by a curious concavity; the moon and stars seem to be hung in space rather than spread out on a flat surface. For a moment one feels at the telescope like a child watching the swift-moving balls kept in the air by a juggler, and expecting to see one of these great bright bodies fall.

Then comes the thought: "What keeps them there, apparently suspended in space with absolutely nothing to hold them firm?" The explanation of the learned astronomer causes the brain of the layman to whirl, and he sees himself, perhaps for the first time, as a child gathering pebbles on the great shores of the sea of knowledge, or as "an infant crying in the night; an infant crying for the light—and with no language but a cry."

TRAINING A CROWN PRINCE

NO boy in being forced through the hard mill of apprenticeship ever underwent more severe training than J. Pierpont Morgan Jr. received at the hands of his father and his father's friends. When "Jack" Morgan, as he was then known, graduated from Harvard, in 1890, his father was a little doubtful about his commercial ability, says the Bookkeeper. It was a case in which paternal affections did not tend to belittle the shortcoming of the object upon whom they were centered. To try him out, his father placed him in the banking house of Peabody & Co., at Boston, and at the expiration of two years there were such favorable reports regarding his work that he took him into his own office in New York. So far as favoritism was concerned, it was never shown him. He was made to work a little harder than any other clerk, and if he made a blunder he was not spared.

STRONGER THAN THE TERMINAL

AN enemy's fleet could be sent to the bottom before getting within five miles of Gibraltar; not even a torpedo boat could succeed in entering the bay unobserved on the blackest night. That sums up the opinions of the most eminent naval experts as to the impregnability of the world's greatest fortress, says Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Gibraltar never sleeps. By day and night two perfectly equipped signal stations, proudly flaunting Britain's flag of ownership, sweep the seas around to a distance of 15 miles on a clear day, instantly reporting the coming and going of each vessel.

Modern "needle" guns, the finest in Europe, are installed on all the most prominent points. They are unreachable from the sea, even as they are undiscernible, owing to the skill with which they are painted and draped to match the surrounding vegetation, while huge screens drop automatically before they as each shell is fired. They have a range of 15 miles and could drop shells on Ceuta, in Africa, opposite, quite comfortably. One gun weights 110 tons and is capable of throwing a shell weighing three-quarters of a ton. In that marvel of engineering under great difficulties, the galleries, are concealed guns for every day in the year.

These galleries are divided into three sections, entry to which is guarded, while one is closed even to high officers, containing preserved stores, munitions of war, rain water (for Gibraltar has no springs), and a complete condensing plant—all calculated to outlast a siege of seven years.

The firing is the most mathematically perfect imaginable. The surrounding waters are mapped out into squares, upon which certain guns are kept ready trained, so that it is almost impossible to miss.

Thoughts on Love and Courtship

By the Post-Dispatch Expert,

BETTY VINCENT.

GIRLS, can you not imagine a manly man, honorable and sincere, with irregular features? Is it possible you would permit your heart to be influenced by a crooked nose, or a mouth not finely chiseled? I can scarcely believe anyone of intelligence would base affections upon superficial characteristics that any beauty doctor might alter. And yet scarcely a mail is brought to me without at least one letter which will read something like this:

"I love a girl and I really think she loves me, but she will not admit it, and she says she will never marry me. Her one reason for this determination is the fact that she is five feet and a half tall, while I am but little over five feet."

The question this girl should have asked is not, "How tall is the man I love?" but "How big is his heart, and how great is his honor?" Does it matter that the brain of Napoleon was confined in the body of an undersized man? Have the girls who set their standards by physical appearances alone ever read of the family lives of some of the so-called "matinee idols?" The girl who marries a man because he is handsome deserves exactly what she usually gets.

D. E. N. writes: "I am seventeen and I like very much a young man of nineteen. He continually pays me compliments. Mother says he is too old for me. Occasionally I meet him in the park when horseback riding. Mother has found this out and reprimanded me. Do you think I am too young to meet him, and is it wrong to see him in the park?"

Indeed, you are much too young to consider young men in any light but as playmates and comrades. Surely, too, it is very wrong for you to disobey your mother. You are too young as yet to judge things for yourself, and it would be better if you took your mother's advice in all things for several years to come.

X. Y. Z. writes: "I know a young man who seems to think a great deal of me. But he does not call very frequently. Nevertheless he does not like other men to call on me. Should I give him up, or give up the others?"

Why give up any one? If you like the young man there is no reason why he should not call upon you. But make him understand he has absolutely no right to interfere with your friendships.

R. B. WRITES: "A young man has called often at our home with my brother. I have heard he thinks a great deal of me, but when we meet at dances he never asks to see me home. Of course I always have my brother or an uncle to see me home. But why does not HE ask to?"

He will if he wants to. It is not a good idea for young girls to listen to tales of a man's admiration for them through somebody else. If he has any affection for you he will let you know it himself.

IF a girl is not satisfied to spend a quiet evening at home alone with her fiance she is not very much in love with him. If she wishes to be taken to the theater almost every night, or else finds she is much happier when a number of her young friends are about her, it would be better for her to break her engagement and not marry the man she fancies she is in love with. A girl must not forget that life will not be one continuous round of theaters and parties after her marriage. Naturally, there will be many quiet evenings spent at home. If her fiance bores her before marriage, will not her husband bore her far more after marriage?

A girl who does not seem to realize how little she cares for the man to whom she is engaged writes: "I am going to be married in the spring and I really think I love the man very dearly, and yet I really do get very tired of him when we have to sit alone together for an entire evening. However, when we go to the theater or a party I feel very proud of him, and it would break my heart to see him marry any other girl."

I think the girl in the case overestimates her affection. Any one who is bored by one evening alone with her fiance can be very sure her love will not last after marriage.

A. G. WRITES: "I am very fond of a young man. I invited him to my house to call one evening, and he did not keep the engagement. Later I heard he had called upon another girl on that evening. When I met him he did not give any explanation. Do you think he cares for me?"

I am quite sure he does not. His behavior was exceedingly rude, and I cannot believe any man would treat a girl that he liked or admired in such a manner. If I were you I would drop his acquaintance unless he apologized.

Better Follow Anty Drudge's Advice.

Mrs. Newbride—"Yes, but this is the way mother washed. She always said to boil the clothes good and long."

Anty Drudge—"Yes, and your mother wore hoopskirts, and a poke bonnet, and did her sewing by hand, when she was young. But I don't see you doing those things. Take my advice and use Fels-Naptha soap in cold or lukewarm water. Those pretty white hands will last longer and so will your health."

Every woman inherits certain ways of doing housework from her mother as the mother did from her grandmother. One of these ideas from ancient times concerns the washing of clothes. "Boil 'em, Boil 'em good," is the old tradition. Until the invention of Fels-Naptha soap that was the only way to wash. Now, isn't it foolish to keep on boiling clothes, and rubbing them hard, when a way to wash better in cold or lukewarm water with no hard rubbing has been found?

Clothes last longer with no boiling to weaken their fibre. Every progressive woman is glad to get rid of the hot fire, steam and suds, as well as the back-breaking work of hard rubbing.

But there's a right way and a wrong way to use Fels-Naptha. Start right. Follow the directions on the wrapper and you'll have a better, easier, cleaner way of washing. For other reasons which are explained on the red and green wrappers, Fels-Naptha is just as superior for all kitchen purposes as it is for washing.

WITH ABSTEIN SIGNED, BROWNS ARE COMPLETE

Hedges and O'Connor Are Now Ready to Start Season, Though They Will Seek Another Pitcher.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

WITH something of a surprise, Owner R. L. Hedges and Manager O'Connor of the Browns announced Friday evening the signing of Bill Abstein as their first baseman for the coming season. Bill is a St. Louis boy, was a member of the world's champion Pirates last fall, and was to have been released by Barney Dreyfuss and Fred Clarke. Hedges procured him by purchase.

When Mr. Hedges and Manager Jack went over to Cincinnati this week, they had two things in mind. They wanted to see Owner Charles Somers of the Cleveland club regarding a proposed trade that would send Wallace to the Naps and bring George Stovall with something additional to the Browns. Then they wanted to see Barney Dreyfuss, the proud owner of the Pirates, regarding the purchase of Abstein, waivers having been asked on the player.

At this meeting it was decided to give up the plan to procure Stovall and take Abstein. Hedges did not announce what price was paid for Abstein, but the chances are that it was reasonable. Now it is likely that Wallace will remain with the Browns, probably to play third base. Hartzell will be at short stop. Olson, the recruit from Louisville will be at second base and Big Bill Abstein on first.

This will enable Jack O'Connor to place Arthur Griggs, his slugging youngster, in the outfield along with Hoffman, Stone, Schweitzer, Demmitt, Shotten and one or two others.

There is nothing needed now to make the Browns a strong team next year, except more pitching strength. O'Connor is working every day on a scheme to get at least one more pitcher and there is a possibility he may procure a veteran catcher also. Then he will be ready to begin training for the coming battles.

The first base problem has been troubling the local management ever since Tom Jones was traded to Detroit for Claude Rossman last summer. Rossman didn't make good with the Browns, neither as first baseman nor as an outfielder. He was sent home and will undoubtedly be disposed of to some minor league club, unless one of the big league teams can make a place for him.

Arthur Griggs was placed on first base after Jones left the Browns, and the boy played the bag fairly well, but his wonderful hitting and his powerful throwing arm caused Mr. Hedges to think he would be of more service in the outfield, while an inclination to move rather slowly made him appear badly at times on the infield.

Abstein Had Trouble With Pittsburg Fans and Couldn't Play Best Game

ALTHOUGH Bill Abstein was the "lemon" of the world's series, it does not mean that he has no good in him. Bill played in bad luck in the big series, but it must be said he made a few bad mistakes on the bases.

It seems that early in the season of 1909 there was some fan of Pittsburg who despised Abstein, and he started out early in the year to get his "goat." It was Abstein's first year in the big League, and doubtless the taunts of some rowdy spectator and his friends behind him unsettled his nerve. Some critics declare that Bill always played as though he had his heart in his mouth.

A ballplayer knows there's nothing so distressing as a cowardly spectator jeering from his safe position in the crowd. The player has no chance to "get back at him."

This may have hurt Abstein's playing with the Pirates, for he was young and inexperienced in big League company and would naturally be a bit nervous. Bill should experience nothing like that in this city. It is his home town and the crowd will be with him at all times.

There's no doubt whatever that Abstein is an athlete and a splendid ballplayer. He's built for a first baseman, too. He's fast and young in years. He gets over the base lines in active fashion and, best of all, he can hit.

If one were to ask any member of the Chicago Cubs what beat them out of the pennant last season he would undoubtedly answer the batting of Bill Abstein of the Pirates as one of the principal causes. Abstein was more effective against the strong Chicago pitchers last season than Hans Wagner. He may not have made quite as many base hits, but it was Bill who was driving in the runs against the former champions.

His batting average for the season was .260 and it was his first year with the big League. He played in 135 games for the Pirates. He made 138 base hits, 20 of which number were two-baggers and 10 were three-baggers, while he had but one home run to his credit.

Bill is a right-handed hitter and thrower. With he and Griggs batting in about third and fourth positions on the Browns team next season, and Hartzell and Hoffman going ahead of them, it seems that some men should get on the bases and others should drive them around.

Fans Wonder Who Is Boss of the Boston Nationals

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—Who is going to be the real boss of the Boston National League ball team and chief dictator of policy, John S. C. Dovey, president, or John Harris, director? While not a whisper has emanated from the Harris, Dreyfuss or Dovey camps, the possibility of there being a man behind the throne and the fact that Director Harris, a man thoroughly conversant with baseball, has already shown his intentions by showing active interest indicates that he is to be the real leader here the coming season.

The matter rests with Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates. Barney's interest in the welfare of the Dovey boys has already been strong. Dreyfuss is a friend of Director Harris and knows just how much baseball ability he has in his system. President Dovey admits that he would rather handle the business end of the club and leave the picking of the players and arranging of deals to some one else.

There are many indications pointing to the probability of Harris being the man behind the throne. He atended the league meeting at New York and represented President Dovey at two important conclaves. Since the meeting he had several conferences with Barney Dreyfuss and other baseball men and has proposed two or three deals.

"BIRDLEGS" COLLINS FIGHTS DRAW WITH PETE SULLIVAN

OGDEN, Utah, Jan. 8.—Pete Sullivan and "Birdlegs" Collins fought a 20-round draw here Friday night. There was no interference by the authorities. This is the first boxing contest in Utah since the discussion arose of holding the Jeffries-Johnson engagement in Salt Lake, and its outcome is considered significant by sporting men.

Michigan Elects Benbrook.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 8.—Albert Benbrook, '11, of Chicago, engineer and brilliant player on the University of Michigan football team last fall, was Friday night elected captain of the 1910 eleven to replace Joy Miller, recently barred from the team.

Basket Ball.

Followers of the Interscholastic League were greatly disappointed in the showing of the Soldan High School, the baby member of the organization, when it suffered an 86 to 9 defeat at the hands of the McKinley High five Friday afternoon at the Louisiana Hall. Soldan failed to display anything substantial and the fast South Siders simply tossed the ball in at will. Many opportunities were presented to the Soldan forwards to score, but they missed on nearly every occasion. The biggest disappointment of all was the playing of Hamilton, who last year was picked for a guard on the "All I.-L." team. Tolkacz, Von Dach, Zachritz and Hoffman were conspicuous. Reber refereed.

The Independents defeated the Haliday A. C. Friday in the first game of a double bill at the Louisiana Hall by the score of 44 to 15. In the second game the Company K of the First Regiment won from the Carval A. C., 42 to 32.

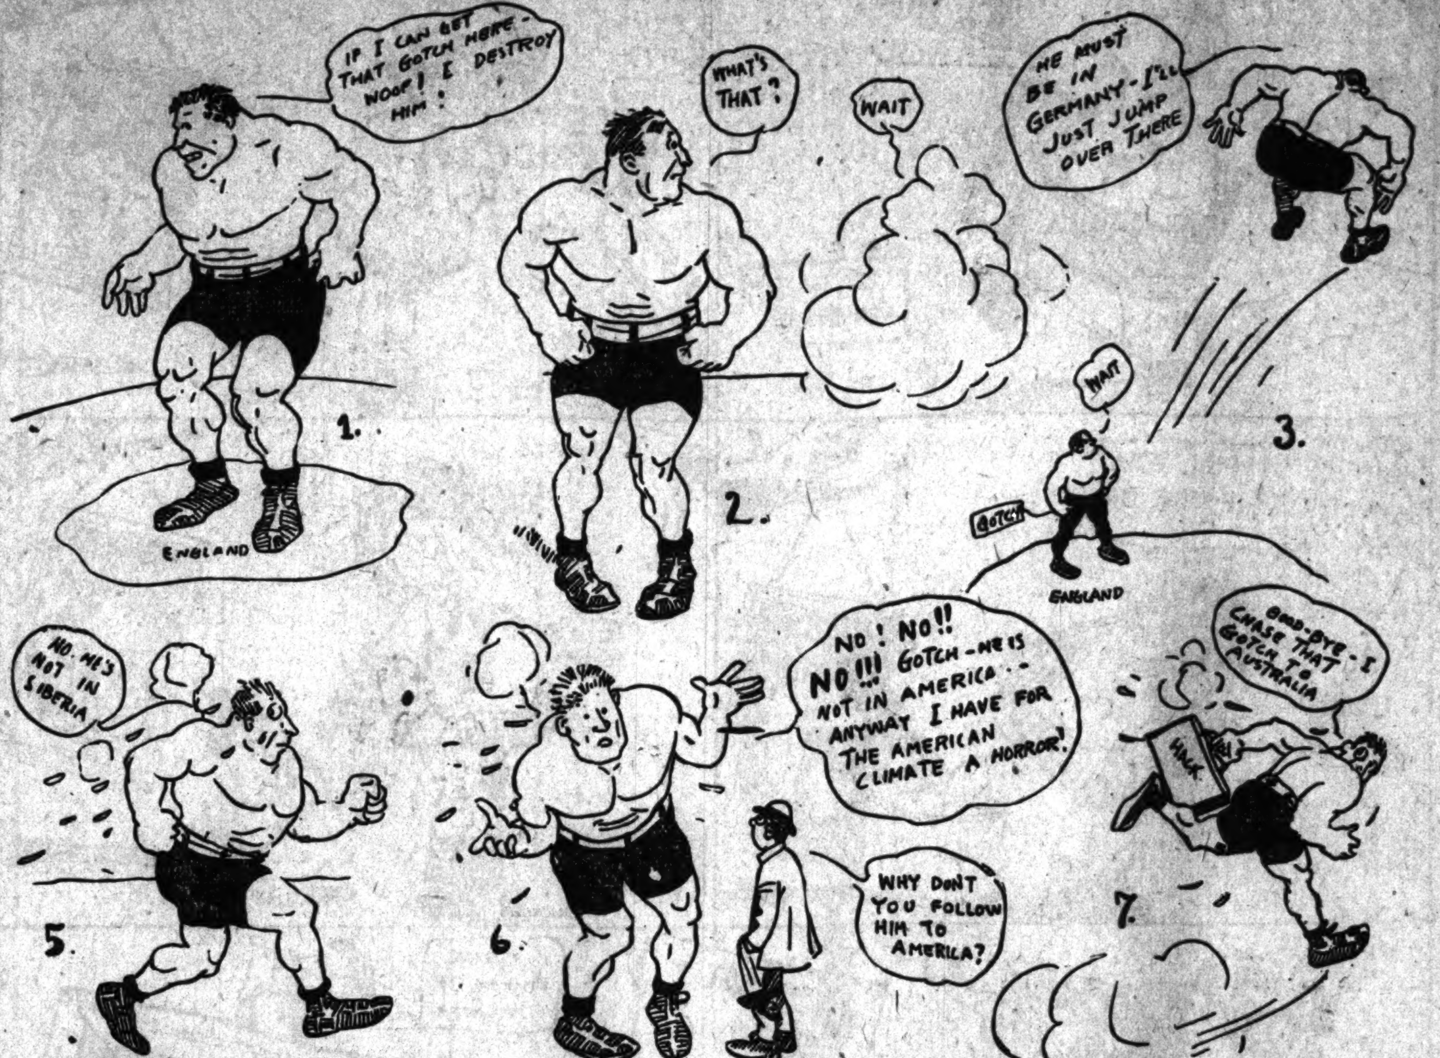

The Western Military Academy team comes to St. Louis this afternoon to meet the Yeatman High five in their annual game, which promises to be as keenly fought as the McKinley-Western game several weeks ago. Yeatman has been putting in some hot practice in preparation for the Cadets, and in all probability the team that wins will do so by the smallest of margins. The game will be played at the Louisiana Hall.

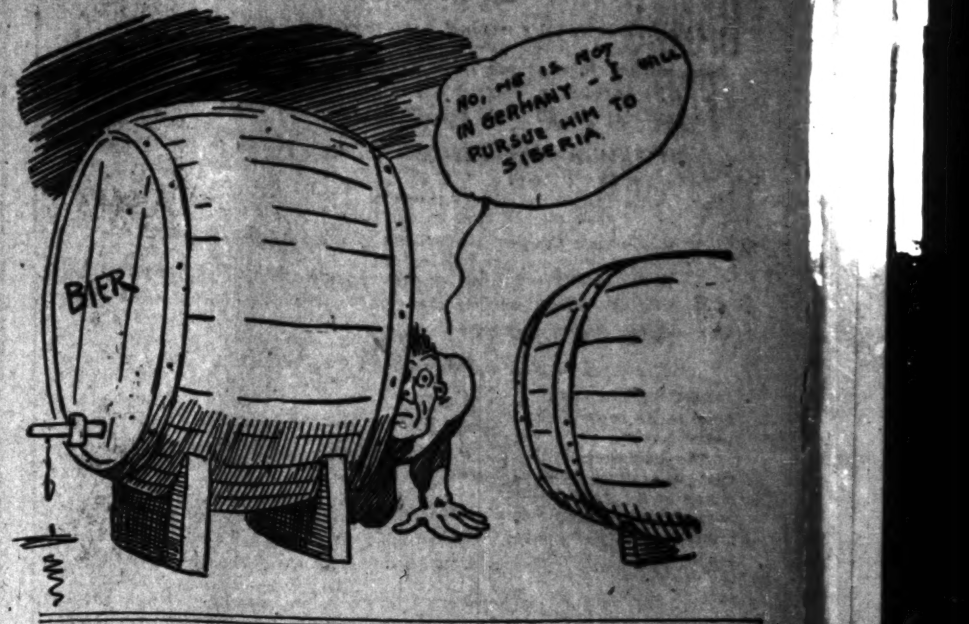

In the initial game of the season the Washington U. five will line up against the Cape Normals Saturday afternoon at the Washington U. gym. The game will serve for no more than a practice event for Coach Cayou's players, as the Indian coach has at least seven men that he wishes to give a try-out for the "varsity." Dougherty and Falvey, forwards; Ettlinger, center; Garret and Tittman, guards, is how the team will line up at the start, but if things don't go right, Cayou will make some changes. The game will start at 2:30. Mike Walker will officiate.

The McKinley High team journeys to De Soto, Mo., Saturday afternoon to play the high school team of that place. The South Siders will not be as strong as usual, as Hoffman and Von Dach will be out of the game.

The Turner societies of St. Louis have organized a basket ball league, in which some hotly contested games are expected to result, owing to the intense rivalry existing between the different turnvereins. The schedule opens Sunday afternoon with the Tower Groves and the Socials playing at the Social Hall and the North St. Louis and St. Louis at St. Louis Hall. The games commence at 2:30.

HACKENSCHMIDT—HE SEARCHES THE WORLD FOR GOTCH

Nelson Off to Train for Fight With Ad Wolgast

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 8.—Battling Nelson, who is in Minneapolis tonight, officiating as referee in a wrestling match, made the announcement that he had cancelled all theatrical engagements and will leave for the coast Monday to begin active training for his coming fight with Wolgast on Feb. 22.

Nelson is confident as to the outcome of the fight, and believes he will give Wolgast a beating.

Shaw Skates a Dead Heat With the Speedy Lang

Allen Shaw, former speed ice skating champion of St. Louis, demonstrated in the half-mile race at the Crystal Natatorium Friday night that he is again rounding into form when he skated a dead heat with Harry Lang in the half-mile race.

Lang has been winning all of the local races and was looked upon as the best skater in St. Louis. The time for the half mile was 1m. 50s.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

THE career of Oscar Mathew Battling Nelson, which has been, until lately, so well filled with emptiness of everything that savors of the ring except money, promises to supply a noisy blowoff. Just at present Oscar has agreed to drop his Hegeswich mayoralty worries, lay down the cares of high finance and start to working with that original fame developer, his "mighty right." Wolgast, Moran, Welsh and "Cyclone" Johnny Thompson have all been invited to soirees de swat by Oscar. After having fulfilled his fistic obligations with these, the Dane will tour the world with Stanley Ketchel. If Nelson, after his many hard batterings received in the past, can assimilate this bunch of coming young ring men, he will in a way be entitled to even more credit than James J. Jeffries earned.

For Nature built Jeffries into something superhuman, almost. Jeff was born a little bit bigger, stronger, faster and more enduring than any other man of his time. He couldn't help being better because he was better equipped.

But Oscar, the Dane—why, there is nothing in which he physically outclasses opponents. Any number of them seem his equal in physique. In fact, Nelson is even handicapped by a lame arm which does not permit of his fully protecting his head in battles. Nothing but native courage took Nelson from the common herd and placed him on a pinnacle. He is surely one fighter who got to the top by the hardest and most devious of routes—that of his own merit.

But the Norseman is reaching the point where even the most willing of dispositions can not flog weakening muscles to their former efficiency. And, who knows, it may be from this last quartet of names which Bat puts up as prospective opponents that the next champion will be drawn.

FROM the number of pugilists to make tours of the world in recent years it is evidently still a true saw that "the longest way round is the shortest way home"—with the money.

What St. Louis Clubs Need.

O, Jupiter aid us: Capsicum, ginger and four real pitchers. Apply daily until the public is relieved.

Perhaps could O'Connor exchange Wallace for three or four Cleveland stars it might prove a feather in his cap; it's such a ticklish matter, you know.

Ha! Ha! Discovered. Stanley Robison! Seek not to deny! The reason you wore whiskers in Chicago recently was to keep reporters from bearding you.

OUR friend Zbyszko Cyganewicz, late of Poland, seems not to be accumulating any ability alarming enough to cause Frank Gotch to worry. The very best performance to his credit—discounting, naturally, his handicap match with Gotch at Buffalo, was to save himself from being thrown by Dr. Roller, though the Pole had guaranteed to "flop" the Seattle man twice an hour. Added to some worries with a big fellow named Ordeman up North a win over that respected but primeval relic, Tom Jenkins, and victories over third-raters like Cutler, that makes the Galician's record since coming to this country.

Unless he shows better his manager had better avoid taking a chance with him in a finish bout with Roller. Otherwise it is no certainty the big fellow can come up for his big bout with Gotch—his one money dependence—with a clean record.

The "price" is about 2 to 1 that the Roller match takes place after the championship affair, not before. It's a case of getting the big trump out safely.

DR. ROLLER, who is a college man and a smart one, says that modern athletes invest their money wisely. Which is more, Doctor, than we think of the public which pays to see some of them. And we can honestly say this doesn't apply to you.

What the rules committee in charge of manhandling the great American game of college football really ought to do is to name a subcommittee to investigate some of the drivel that was sent out in the reports of alleged football casualties. Every report ought to be investigated and the truth told.

Mr. Moffatt of Princeton showed the gross exaggeration of reporters trying to sell matter to the press of the country—exaggerations directly responsible for the bad odor into which the game has fallen.

Were a committee to publish an authentic annual report of its findings in regard to deaths and injuries resulting from football, followers of the game would have less reason to feel indignant at the attacks the sport suffers.

M. A. C. Men in Swim With the Chicago Club

Although the members of the Missouri A. C. aquatic squad were certain that they would win the majority of the events in their dual meet with the swimmers of the Illinois A. C. at the club in Chicago Saturday night, it is possible that the local paddlers may receive a surprise, as the Chicago men will be swimming in their home tank, which is quite an advantage.

The St. Louis squad of swimmers accompanied by Frank Sullivan, aquatic director of the M. A. C. departed for Chicago Friday night. The men who made the trip were: Otto and Marquard Schwarz, Gus Goessling, Charley Grimes, Manfred Toeppen, George Hall, Charley and Ed Cohn, M. M. Stockton, Ed Manley, Hancock and Hugh Siegel.

PITTSBURG WILL FORCE BOXERS TO GET IN TRIM

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—Satisfied that pugilism in this city sooner or later would be killed through disappointing the enthusiasts by advertising a certain fighter to appear and then having the bout called off through his failure to appear 24 hours before the fight for a physical examination by the police examiner, boxers now will have to appear one week before the contest and finish their training under the supervision of the various clubs. Langford and "Montana Jack" Sullivan, who are matched to meet here this month, will finish up their work in this city.

Magee Signs Contract.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—All reports about Sherwood N. Magee of the Philadelphia National League baseball club being traded to some other club were set at rest Friday when the star fielder affixed his signature to a Philadelphia contract for another year. His salary was increased.

Alley Strikes and Spares

Three cocked hat bowling records for the season went by the board on the Grand alleys Friday night, the Bentons getting the high single game, 317, in their third essay, and the total of 1427 for five games is also a new mark for the season. Kumpff, with a total of 329 pins for an average of 65 4-5 pins per game, also smashed a season's record. Kumpff certainly rolled some great games, but his teammates also did likewise. Sefka got 279, Lambey 296, Hruska 243, Emmet 280. The Bentons opposed the Lafayettes and took five games. In the other Office Men's League matches the Towers took three out of five from the Fountains, and the Lyons took five straight in their match with the Forests.

Judging from their recent performances this young Fer Mil Lac team which is shooting in several leagues is a five that will bear watching. The team rolled a trio of good games on the hard Nos. 1 and 2 alleys in their first outing in the City Star League last Tuesday night. Friday evening the five bowled against the Duponts in the Office Men's League on the De Soto-Pine alleys. The Duponts received 116 pins handicap per game, but were unable to win out in even one of the essays. If Pratt, one of the members of the Fer Mil Lacs, had not been ill and unable to shoot up to his best game, instead of getting 479 pins the "Lacs" would have registered a fine total. In the first game the team got 894. This was only a fairly good start. In the second they came back with a 1008 and finished with 947. There is not what might be called a veteran bowler on the team. Stedman was easily high man, his "southpaw" delivery netting him a total of 655 pins. Hancock got 619 and Hippe 577.

The Sieber & Trussels registered the best score in their St. Louis Tenpin League match with the Marquette Hotels on the Grand alleys Friday night. The S. & Ts. took three games with 2812 pins. This total was registered by consistent bowling. Engel got 668 pins for the winners and Seysler also got a good score when he landed on the head pin to the tune of 629. The Grands, with 2761, took three games from the All Americas in the other St. Louis League contest. Rothwell, with 615, was the individual star of the contest.

In the other Office Men's League matches the Markhams took two out of three from the Post Office team; Petts Bros. cleaned up at the expense of the Meyer Bros.; Ideal Stars took two out of three from the Hanley & Kinsellas; De Sotos whitewashed the Festal Halls, and the Wabash did likewise to the Swifts.

The Palace Handicap League teams bowled on the Palace alleys Friday night, the matches resulting as follows: McCormacks 2, Marions 1; Thumsers 2, Mermanns 1; Pirates 3, Newlyweds 0; Hoppes 3, Old Capitols 1; Drews 2, Idlewilds 1; American Centrals 2, Braschs 1. The Pirates did the best work, getting an average of 922 pins per game. G. Wiche, with a 209 average, was the individual star.

The Kruegers took three games from the Cavaliers and the Baptistes annexed the odd game in their match with the Westerns in the Palace Junior League contests on the Palace alleys Friday night. Finley, with a 168 average, was high individual.

The Manufacturing League teams bowled on the De Soto Olive alleys Friday night, the matches resulting as follows: Keen Kutters 2, Geller, Ward & Hasners 1; M., K. & T. 2, Seibert-Trusslers 1; Bank of Commerce 2, Premiers 1.

Saturday night is the official date set for the closing of the entry list to the Middle West tournament which will open on the De Soto Pine alleys, Saturday night. The medals have been on exhibition and are the best that have been offered since the A. B. C. tournament, held in this city. The cash prize will also be the largest since the A. B. C. event. A big entry from St. Louis is therefore expected. Entries will be received up as late as Monday.

MATTY HAS A STORY WITHOUT A NAME AND CALLS FOR HELP

Big Pitcher of the Giants Is Serious on Intent to Write Book for Boys.

BY BOZEMAN BULGER.
A Special Correspondent for the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.

"SAY," said Matty, as we were chalking our cues and getting ready for a game of straight rail billiards, "you fellows have been coming to me for years asking suggestions and pointers on stories about the art of pitching, and you know I am always ready to do the best I can, but right now I want to get some inside information on your game. This is what you might call a baseball interview with reverse English."

"Go ahead," was the reply to the famous pitcher; "I will be the goat."

"Well," he went on, "I want to know how you go about getting the name for a story. I suppose you know that I have turned author," and the big fellow actually blushed as he said that. "The thing that is holding me back is a name for the story. I've got a peach and I believe, while I am not a big leaguer in your game, that I can do some minor league writing. When I am through with the yarn, if it is not quite good enough for the big league Bill Aulick is going over it for me and will help me put in the 'inside work.'"

"Why not call the book 'The Mystery of the Bat Bag, or Who Stole Seymour's Stick,'" was suggested, the writer having in mind an incident when Sy lost his new bat at Louisville last spring.

"No, no, that won't do," objected Matty. "This is no josh story. It's about a boy who had a hard time of it and finally made good in the big League. I want a catchy name. Something that smacks of adventure and ambition. Do you get that?"

"Well, how would something do like Abelbert's Aim, or the Pill that Split the Pan?"

"I think you are trying to kid," said the Big Fellow. "I'm on the level with this and I'll tell you right now I'm going to make some money out of it. The publishers tell me that my idea is a good one and that the plot is of an interesting nature. Of course it will take hard work for me to finally weave it together. But, say, did you ever know me to start anything that I didn't go through with?" There was a trace of pride in the last remark, and Big Six had that look that ballplayers have come to know. It means that his mind is made up.

"Seriously," he continued, "I have tried to think of a good title for two weeks, and to save my life I cannot hit on the right one."

"Does a girl figure in the story?" asked a listener.

"Sure," said Matty. "That is, in a limited way. This is not a love story, you understand. It is a book for boys, but at the same time the boy has a sweetheart, and he came to the city trying to find her when he broke into baseball."

"In that event," was suggested, "why not try something like 'He Loved Her, but She's Moved?'"

"Oh, go on and shoot," said Big Six, a little miffed, and he leaned over the billiard table to watch the opening stroke. Seeing that the big fellow was in earnest, his friends gathered around and asked him about his new venture. It developed that Matty has really gone to work on a baseball story that it to be published in book form. He tells me that the Bodmer Company had accepted the idea, and that relieves him of the difficulty of finding a publisher.

"The story," explained Matty, seriously this time, "is about a poor boy who was working his way through college out West and came East. He wanted to work his way through one of the big colleges in the East and he had to do so by the aid of his baseball ability. In the story I intend to take up several of the championship games that have been played and throw some light on them that perhaps some of you writers have overlooked."

Anybody know a good name for a book? If you do and do not send it to Matty you are going back on an old friend.

BENDER REFUSES OFFER TO COACH NEBRASKA

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 8.—John "Twister" Bender, famous as a football player and now coach of the Haskell Indians, has refused, after being selected, to coach the University of Nebraska baseball team. Bender wanted to coach both the baseball and football teams and he was not given the latter job. He said that the salary of the baseball coach was too small to induce him to leave Haskell.

DALY SHOWS IMPROVEMENT BUT LOSES TO DE ORO

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—Starting with a big disadvantage, John Daly, the Chicago three-cushion billiardist, made an uphill fight to overcome the big lead of Alfredo DeOro in the final block of 50 points here Friday night. Daly played better than at any time during the week, but was forced to accept defeat in his efforts to lift the title by a final score of 150 to 119.

S.S.S. THE ONLY REMEDY FOR BLOOD POISON

The first symptom of Contagious Blood Poison is usually a little sore or ulcer, so insignificant that often no attention is given it. But when the blood becomes more fully infected with the virus the mouth and throat get sore, glands in the neck and groin swell, and sometimes ulcerate, forming sores and ulcers, the hair comes out, copper colored spots appear on the body, and where the disease is allowed to remain in the system the poison frequently penetrates deeper and attacks the bones. S. S. S. is the true antidote for Contagious Blood Poison—the only remedy that is able to get at the very root of the trouble and remove every particle of the virus from the circulation; at the same time S. S. S. acts with upbuilding and tonic effect on every portion of the system. As soon as the system gets under the influence of S. S. S. the symptoms begin to disappear and soon a perfect cure is made. S. S. S. can be used in the privacy of one's own home and a permanent cure effected. To aid those who wish to cure themselves at home we have prepared a special Home Treatment book which contains much valuable information to Contagious Blood Poison Sufferers. With the aid of this book and the use of S. S. S. a cure can be effected in every case. We will send this book, and also any medical advice desired free to all who write.

Post-Dispatch's Complete Daily Record of Markets and Finance

BANKS' SURPLUS FOR WEEK LEAST SINCE OCTOBER

Recourse to European Lenders and Interior Correspondents Is Significant.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The day's stock market, though active, was strong. Some fractional declines in the first few minutes of business were rather quickly recovered and prices thereafter moved irregularly toward a moderately higher level. Most of the day's activity converged on Reading and on Steel common, in which there were large professional dealings. Taken as a whole, the market ended quiet and firm.

Naturally, after this week's experiences in the money market, today's weekly bank statement was awaited with interest. It appeared at the close of business, and showed on the actual returns an increase of $11,000,000 in surplus reserves, obtained partly through a $10,400,000 increase in cash and partly through $14,000,000 loan reduction.

The cash increase is not much more than was naturally to be expected. The showing of loans perhaps will cause more surprise. No doubt the week's Stock Exchange liquidation must have released a good many large loans from the account of clearing house banks. But the high money rates have been commonly ascribed to the shifting back to those banks of loans lately carried elsewhere, a process perhaps reflected in the $20,000,000 decrease in loans reported by the trust companies today.

This makes the bank loan showing somewhat puzzling. It is perhaps to be explained by the known fact of their recourse this week to European lenders and to some interior banks. Such borrowing must, in the light of the bank returns, have been very large. As figures stand, the bank surplus is the largest reported since last October.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—There was no well-defined tone in the opening stock market today, the small straggling dealings being effected at insignificant mixed changes. A rise of ¾ in Erie first preferred was the only change in excess of a half.

The list sagged after the opening, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Reading, New York Central, Atchison and Chesapeake & Ohio falling ¼ to ¾. The resistance shown by United States Steel and the subsequent large orders for the stock which carried it up to 88⅜, caused a general rally in which Reading recovered a point. Prices, however, were not very well sustained. Virginia-Carolina Chemical rose ¾ and Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred, American Agricultural Chemical, United States Rubber, Western Union 1, Toledo, St. Louis & Western and Pittsburg Coal preferred lost 1.

The market closed firm. Prices hardened slowly toward the end of the day, in sympathy with the 1-point rise in United States Steel. Rock Island preferred, Baltimore & Ohio, Illinois Central, Denver & Rio Grande, Laclede Gas and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred rose 1; United States Express 2 and Philadelphia Company 3½.

TRADING ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE CONTINUES GOOD

Issues of the United Railways Co. Are Feature of Saturday's Session.

Twenty-five transfers were registered at the single session of the St. Louis stock exchange Saturday, issues of the United Railways Co. being in a majority. Trading was good, and about on a par with the previous sessions of the week. K. C. Home Telephone bonds were again fairly active, the $100 denomination being in most demand.

Railways Preferred was very slightly lower, while the 4's were about unchanged. Sand was advanced. In the matter of quotations on bank stocks there were material gains in Bankers' Trust and in St. Louis Union Trust. Candy and Hydraulic Brick were dull.

COTTON CLOSES IN STRONG POSITION AT GOOD GAINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 7 points to an advance of 5 points, being influenced by weak cables at the beginning of the call, while the appearance of good buying orders firmed prices up on the later months and the general list advanced quite sharply during the first few minutes, with March selling up to 15.74c and May to 15.90c, or about 6 points net higher. Realizing became heavier and prices eased off 5 or 6 points, but the market developed no actual weakness, owing partly to expectations of a bullish census report on Monday and a further advance in print cloths at Fall River. New Orleans was closed today.

The market closed strong, with prices net 10 to 21 points higher. The close:

HOGS—A good supply arrived for Saturday and the market was on a lower basis. Compared with the best time yesterday morning prices were 10@15c off and the market inclined to be draggy. The top was $8.85 for one load, while the bulk sold from $8.55@8.70. Shippers and butchers were the best buyers and secured the bulk of the hogs. Packers were very bearish. Good pigs and lights were ready sellers, but the poorer grades went very slow. Best lights weighing less than 160 pounds sold at $8.20@8.50 and the best 110 pounds and under $8@8.35. Common pigs sold at $5@6.50.

SHEEP—There was no sheep market from the fact that none was on sale. Buyers were around as usual and would have purchased a reasonable number of good sheep and lambs at steady to strong prices. Best fat lambs are quotable as high as $8.85, yearlings close to $8, fat mutton sheep $6, and bucks up to $4.50.

HORSES AND MULES—The horse market was dull and inactive today on account of the lack of horses offered. All offerings for the week were disposed of in the auctions and dealers were well cleaned up at the close of Friday's market. Receipts for the day were light, approximating 25 head. After a week's hard work commission men succeeded in making a good clearance of the inferior offerings of mules and found their way to the market this week. Dealers enjoyed a good trade up to the close of the market today. Receipts for the day were light, approximating 150 head.

Block Named for President.

The committee appointed by the St. Louis Fruit and Produce Exchange to make nominations for the annual election Tuesday, Jan. 18, reported the following ticket Saturday and it was made the official ticket of the exchange: President, Louis Block; vice-president, G. P. Schopp; secretary and treasurer, Henry J. Bellmeyer; directors, H. M. Smith, J. B. Stewart, J. V. Gazzolo, B. H. Schopp and J. W. Corcoran. It is not expected that the ticket will have any opposition.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKETS IN BRIEF

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Wheat showed a slight advance in the early trading here today; corn and oats fell off and provisions prices declined under the influence of larger than expected receipts of live hogs.

An improved demand for cash wheat from Northwest millers was noted, which inspired considerable buying. All the futures opened at a slight advance, ranging from a shade to ¼c higher than the previous close. The widest spread was in the May delivery, which covered ⅛@¼c. The opening price of May was $1.13¾ to $1.14, a shade to ¼c higher than yesterday's closing figures. The price of May fluctuated in the early trades and after touching $1.14⅛@1.14¼, settled back to about the opening level.

The market weakened toward the close of the session under strong selling pressure from leading longs. Less demand for cash wheat also contributed to the decline. After advancing to $1.14⅜@1.14½, May dropped to $1.13½, closing at $1.13½@1.13⅝, ⅛@¼c lower than yesterday's final figures. The other futures displayed similar weakness.

The corn market continued weak all day, and May closed at 68⅜c, ⅛@⅜c lower than yesterday's final quotations.

Oats were easier.

RAILROAD NEWS AND GOSSIP

Everything considered Reading Railway's November earning statement makes the best exhibit of any month since the panic. Gross of $4,000,848 was a trifle smaller than the $4,062,619 reported in October, but the latter month is always a greater period with Reading than is November.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Atchison's December carloading is 8 per cent above year ago, but operating costs were heavy on account of the storms, whereas it was favorable a year ago. January traffic is holding its own. Operating conditions are nearly normal again.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The Wall Street Journal says: "The Rock Island episode is apparently not yet ended. The undercurrent of rumor is that one stock exchange house may get a year's suspension and that other houses may get minor punishment.

"Large financial interests in Wall Street are also on the trail of the offenders and some interests may be forced out of the financial and corporation community."

WHEAT RULES DULL AT SMALL DECLINE

Market Is Typical Saturday Affair, With Prices Almost Stationary at Insignificant Losses.

Bull operations in the local wheat market again were checked Saturday. There were some signs of steadiness early in the day, but the dullness of the trade and profit taking among the longs more than supplied the demand. Prices sagged moderately and during most of the short session ruled dull at slightly lower levels. The close was at losses of ⅛@⅜c for the day.

Relatively steady cables caused a higher opening in the local market. Liverpool was inclined to sag at the start, owing to the previous weakness in America, very heavy shipments from Australia and liberal offerings in the spot market. This easiness was soon recovered from, however, and a good demand created by the further advance at Argentine and continued unfavorable advices from the country regarding both the weather and the lateness of the crop. Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d higher, a firm response to our previous decline.

This and the generally smaller receipts caused a firm opening in the local market. Fractional advances were scored but a weakening tendency soon became apparent. It was due mainly to the dull, listless tone in the cash market. Cash wheat was in small demand and prices, under a light trade, ruled easy at further reductions in premiums. The weather throughout most of the belt has materially moderated, lessening the probability of harm from freezing, and improving the facilities for marketing. As farmers seem willing to sell at existing levels, this seems to presage an increase in the movement very soon. Prospects are for bearish statistics on Monday.

Futures moved very slowly. During most of the session they ruled dull at slight declines and they closed in an easy position.

May wheat opened a shade higher at $1.14, sagged to $1.13⅝, advanced to $1.14½@1.14⅝, and declined to $1.13⅝. July wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.02⅝, advanced to $1.02⅞, and declined to $1.02⅛.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The time money market was a shade firmer. Thirty and sixty days were quoted at 4¼@4½ per cent, with most of the loans made at 4½ per cent. Three, four and six months are 4½ per cent. Industrial loans are going at 4⅝ per cent for all periods.

Commercial paper is moving slowly and is easier. The volume of paper coming onto the market is very light, while the demand is indifferent. Rates are now 4¼@4⅝ per cent for the best names.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Money is firm at 5 per cent minimum for ordinary commercial paper and 5½ per cent on many loans. Banks are showing the effects of the holiday week in their indisposition to take on paper. Demand for funds shows a widening of activity.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Call money was steady throughout at 2¼ per cent. Bills were fairly active at 3¼ per cent. A large amount due from the market to the Bank of England was repaid.

A rumor is current that Speyer Bros. will issue $3,500,000 Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific first refunding gold mortgage 4s, at about 96.

FOURTH SYMPHONY CONCERT OF HIGH ART-DISTINCTION

TINA LERNER SOLOIST

Hadley's Symphonic Fantasia Heard Here for First Time—Today's Matinee.

THE especial distinction attaching to the fourth subscription concert of the Symphony Orchestra season at the Odeon last night came, as a matter of course, from the first presentation in America of Jean Hure's nocturne with piano obligato.

This interesting work by a young French composer, whose earliest musical training was given him by his mother, and who then studied under a music-loving monk at the organ-keys of the church of St. Vincent de Paul in the town of Glen, where he was born, is a bold example of dramatic and picturesque tone-painting, strangely graphic in scenic vividness.

By a daring employment of many instruments, and notably the bassoon, the oboe, the bass-clarinet and the French horn, made to sound quaintly atmospheric night-noises above the more conventional utterances of the underlying strings and the occasionally emphasized piano, M. Hure succeeds in imparting to his revery of the darkness a spirit of grippingly effective realism.

It is not the tranquil aspect of the night which he has chosen to present. Rather is it that which somewhat awes or dismays the soul, when mournful winds are crying in lonely woods, when clouds scurry across the sky, when owls hoot and witches, riding the storm, voice their hag-laughter from the upper spaces of their uncanny flight. "I heard the trailing garments of the night"—somehow this line insistently repeats itself to you as you listen to the Hure score.

And yet the young French dreamer of harmonic stage settings is not blind to the sweeter face of darkness. There are certain moments when he requires of the piano, where, last night, Tina Lerner played from the score because of the new work's unfamiliarity, the most exquisite utterances of night's more peaceful and soothing mood. At other moments the strings were called upon for a melodious phrasing of poetic thought under nocturnal inspiration that delighted the discriminating soul. And there was one instant when, softly rebuking the wilder voices of the hour, there came a tuneful minster-clock's chiming of silver-throated bells of the utmost beauty and of the keenest dramatic artistry in their employment at such a time. The young Hure, it seems to me, proved himself well worthy of Conductor Zach's attention, and the Symphony Orchestra and Miss Lerner finely collaborated to give his work its entirely competent first American presentation.

In the splendid Liszt concerto No. 2 in A major, giving her the most conspicuous solo opportunity of her St. Louis engagement, Tina Lerner admirably acquitted herself.

[illegible], fervent, task-concentrated to [illegible] extent of ignoring the ordinary [illegible] most likely to commend her in [illegible] of many upon whom exag[illegible] too surely imposes, Miss Lerner is an artist of absolute genuineness. [illegible] has been vigorously schooled, she [illegible] sincere native power, the elusive [illegible] often overexploited possession of temperament is hers, and she loves her art with a passionate and all-absorbing love. These truths she revealed last night, as she had indicated them in her performance at the first Beethoven cycle concert of Wednesday evening.

A great delight of the evening was the orchestra's interpretation of Robert Schumann's deeply poetic symphony No. 4 in D minor, in which he tells the beautiful love-story of his own life. This exquisite composition tests not only the technical skill of its interpreters, but demands from conductor and players alike an inner qualification for its rightful playing based upon individual appreciation of its pure emotional spirit. Mr. Zach and his 70 instruments responded finely to this demand, hence the delight of which I spoke but a moment ago. The program's other numbers were the overture to Weber's "Euryanthe," capably presented, and Hadley's symphonic fantasia, heard for the first time in St. Louis, a work in which this American composer reveals a sound knowledge of orchestral possibilities along modern lines, and which received competent treatment.

The identical program thus so satisfyingly presented last night is the offering at this afternoon's concert, beginning at 3:15 o'clock.

TWO CHINAMEN ON TRIAL FOR MURDER, AND "SLAVE GIRL" STABBED TO DEATH

COWED BY DIRK THAT ENDED LIFE OF CHINESE GIRL

"Husband" of Chinatown Slave Shudders as Knife Is Flourished in Court.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—It was near the close of the first day of the trial of Lau Tang and Lau Shang, accused of the murder of Bow Kum, a Chinese "slave girl," when her husband by a "Chinese ceremony," Chim Lem, was called to the stand in the Supreme Court before Justice Goff yesterday and turned over to the defense for cross-examination. First establishing a foundation for the charge that was about to follow, Attorney McManus desisted in his questioning and appeared lost in thought. His hands were behind his back. Suddenly he leaned forward.

"Isn't it a fact," he thundered at the witness, "that you had a quarrel with Bow Kum the night of Aug. 14 and that you killed her with this knife?"

Chim Lem shuddered and his face turned a sickly yellow. He understood the question long before the interpreter translated it.

"No," he mumbled.

Denies She Wanted to Quit Him.

"Isn't it a fact that she wanted to leave you and go to Boston because you were forcing her to lead an immoral life?"

"No," answered the witness.

"Where did you first meet Bow Kum?"

"She lived in Mexican alley, in San Francisco. I met her in the mission. I married her according to the Chinese custom."

"What was that custom?"

"Well," Chim Lem responded, "Mrs. Cameron, the manager of the mission, said: 'You are married according to the Chinese custom.' I left Bow Kum in the mission and came to New York. I told her if I got a job I would send for her; otherwise not."

"You were born in San Francisco and learned to speak and write English at an American school there?"

"Yes."

"And yet you can't understand English now?" sneered McManus.

He Meets Men He Accuses.

The witness said that after arriving in New York he joined the On Leon Tongs and went to live with other members of the clan. "Cousins and Brothers," at 22 Mott street.

"Do you know these two defendants?"

"I never saw them until they came to my brothers' room in Mott street. By 'my brothers' I mean we belong to the same clan, the same family."

"When did the defendants see you?"

"Three weeks before the murder. They came to ask for $3000 because they said Lau Hong Dong had paid that sum for Bow Kum in China and that I had stolen the girl from him. I said I took her from school and I wouldn't pay the money."

It was the refusal of Chim Lem to pay this money that resulted in the murder of the slave girl and brought on a death struggle between the Four Brothers and the On Leon Tongs. The two men who are on trial are members of the Four Brothers.

The witness admitted he had a wife in China at the time he married Bow Kum and that although able to maintain two apartments—at 17 and 22 Mott street—he had not worked since coming to New York. He said he paid the expenses of Bow Kum on the trip across the continent established her here and lived for months on the $300 he had when he left San Francisco.

NEGRO BURGLAR DROPS OVERCOAT IN POLICE CHASE

Thief Abandons Garment, Hampering Flight, and Pawntickets Are Found.

After a chase of a dozen blocks Saturday afternoon, in which Patrolman Barnett fired two shots at a fleeing negro burglar, the negro escaped through an alley after he had thrown away his overcoat to hasten his speed. An amethyst pin and a pawn ticket for a pair of opera glasses, found in the overcoat, indicate that the burglar had visited other homes than the one from which he was driven preceding the chase.

Detectives believe the negro is the thief who has been terrorizing Labadie and St. Louis avenues by recent burglaries.

Policeman Barnett was told at 1 p. m. that a burglar was seen entering a house at 4758 St. Louis avenue, the home of Mrs. Rosebrough, who was absent. As Barnett approached, he saw the negro leap from a window, which had been pried open, and run away.

Barnett followed and shot at the negro as he dodged behind a telegraph pole. Half a block further he shot again. When the negro had run another block he took off his overcoat and threw it to the street. The chase lasted for a dozen blocks, many residents joining in, until King's highway and Spalding avenue was reached. The negro ran through an alley and was lost to sight.

PREACHER QUITS THE PULPIT TO BECOME WORKER IN FACTORY FOR $500 A YEAR LESS PAY

The Rev. Walter E. Evans Decides He Was Not "Called" for the Ministry.

The conviction of the Rev. Walter E. Evans that he was not "called" to the ministry, but that he should exercise his Christian influence among workmen, is costing him $500 per year. The Rev. S. J. Niccolls of the Second Presbyterian Church, whose assistant he was until his resignation was accepted Jan. 1, says Dr. Evans is receiving that much less in the Pine street factory where he is now working than he received in the ministry.

The Rev. Mr. Evans filed his resignation with the Board of Elders of his church two months ago to be effective at the beginning of the New Year. Members of the congregation pleaded with him to remain and withdraw his resignation, but when he refused to do so the board accepted his withdrawal.

Donning overalls, the Rev. Mr. Evans now works daily among the workmen whom he feels it his duty to help in a Christian way. He still retains his membership in the church and is in charge of the Sunday school.

Evans had been assistant pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church for four years, and had spent three years at the Western Theological Seminary at Pittsburg after he graduated from Princeton. He resides at 8 Beverly place.

WILL GET MRS. SAGE'S $500,000

American Bible Society Short Only $37,000 of Needed Sum.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The American Bible Society lacks only $37,000 of the $500,000 fund which it must raise to take advantage of Mrs. Sage's $500,000 gift.

A plan for getting this during the next fortnight has been arranged at the society's offices. The society's agents and representatives in the West, South and East will be asked to raise $5000 each, while the remaining amount will be collected through the New York office.

The Joys Of Christmas

During the holiday season the stomach is called upon to bear a much greater strain than at any other time of the year, for not only do the majority of people eat considerably more on Christmas and New Year's days, and during the intervening week, but also indulge in a much greater variety of rich and often indigestible foods.

Turkey, partridge, pheasant, canvasback duck diamond-back terrapin, deviled oysters, mince pie, rich candies, cakes, nuts and other deliciously palatable and delectable foods are eaten, almost without limit, and even persons who are moderate in eating the rest of the year, "throw discretion to the winds" during this joyous festal season, and indulge their palates and stomachs to their heart's content, while "professional epicureans," accustomed to indulge immoderately all the year around, simply go beyond all limits.

During this season of joy and gladness the chronic dyspeptic has occasion to envy everyone who possesses a strong and normal digestion, for while others are enjoying themselves, he must exist in his meager "prescribed diet," because his stomach is no longer capable of digesting foods as it once could.

It is during this happiest time of all the year, when nearly everyone is eating his heartiest, that the great indigestion remedy, STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS, gets in its fine work, and saves many thousands of people from suffering more or less severe attacks of acute indigestion, resulting from over-indulgence in the good things of the table.

The chronic dyspeptic, too, by using two or three of these tablets after each meal, can escape his usual attack of indigestion which he is accustomed to experience after eating, and he does not have to stint himself in the least, but can eat as much as anyone whose digestion is powerful, resting assured that through the use of this inimitable remedy dyspepsia and indigestion are put to flight, and become things of the past.

Don't fail to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal on Christmas, Thanksgiving, New Year's day and during the holidays; also, after all rich and elaborate banquets, late suppers, card parties, after-theater parties, champagne suppers and all festivals where numerous and extensive courses are served, which tax the digestive organs to their limit and beyond.

By the liberal use of this great anti-dyspeptic remedy, all inimical effects upon the stomach and rest of the digestive system, caused by over-indulgence of epicureanism, are absolutely avoided.

Purchase a box from your druggist for 50 cents and use them after all heavy meals; take them with you to the club or banquet this evening and save your stomach from overwork. A free sample will be sent you by writing to F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

STEPHENSON NOT THE MARK HANNA FOR LA FOLLETTE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 8.—The suit of Herman L. Ekern against Albert T. Twesme on account of alleged libel in the campaign of 1908 brought out some startling statements when the deposition of Senator Isaac Stephenson was taken.

The reason Senator La Follette and Senator Isaac Stephenson came to a parting of the ways was that the latter refused to contribute a quarter of a million dollars for a presidential campaign for Senator La Follette. Such was the statement of Senator Stephenson.

He said further, when the suggestion was made that his memory might be bad, that in support of what he might say he had a stack of letters from Senator La Follette and his followers which would in time be published and would show some persons in a far different light from that in which they had posed.

"They will make interesting reading said Mr. Stephenson.

At the conclusion of the examination as Mr. Ekern, white with rage, turned to go, he said: "You are an old man, Senator, but you have done a great injustice to Senator La Follette this afternoon."

"I may be an old man," replied Stephenson, "but I am not so old that I do not know what I am saying."

It was intimated by those in attendance, though not brought out in the examination, that the chief argument used in the attempt to raise the $250,000 for the campaign fund was a hint that Stephenson might be the Mark Hanna of the La Follette administration in case the latter were elected.

GRIEF DRIVES WOMAN OF 58 TO KILL HERSELF

Mrs. Emma Eberlein Commits Suicide in Daughter's Home on Arkansas Av.

Grief for her husband, who died three years ago after an illness of three days, is believed to have caused the suicide of Mrs. Emma Eberlein, 58 years old, who killed herself by asphyxiation early Saturday in the bathroom of her daughter's home at 2322 Arkansas avenue.

A maid who found the body called Mrs. Eberlein's daughter, Mrs. Paul H. Glesson. The discovery was a great shock to Mrs. Glesson, as nothing which her mother had said had led her to expect such a tragedy.

Members of the household believe Mrs. Eberlein's decision to end her life was made during the night. It is not known at what time she went to the bathroom and turned on the gas. The body was clad only in a night dress.

Mrs. Eberlein's husband was cashier of the National Brewery, and widely known among Germans. He returned home one day suffering from an illness, and died three days later. Efforts to console the widow were unavailing, and the years did not seem to soften her sorrow. She had two sons, Walter T. and Felix K. Eberlein.

BRAVED THE DANGERS OF A STORM SWEPT SEA

Lighthouse Keeper Sails Six Miles Amid Floating Ice to Secure a Bottle of Father John's Medicine.

David W. Collison, assistant keeper of a Maryland lighthouse, tells the risks and dangers he experienced in order to secure a supply of Father John's Medicine, as follows:

"I am at 'Seven Foot Knoll' lighthouse, Patapsk River, Md. I was on the verge of grip. I had previously used Father John's Medicine with good success and needed a supply to give me strength to ward off the attack.

"Owing to the inclement weather, I could not leave the station to go to Baltimore to renew my supply of Father John's Medicine, so I started amid the risks and dangers of drifting ice, and sailed six miles to Sparrows Point, the nearest place where I could secure another bottle of Father John's Medicine. I have every confidence in the medicine and so was willing to undertake the great risk involved.

Stock and 4% Convertible Bonds — American Telephone and Telegraph Company

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company is the union, under one management and stock ownership control, of all the associated Bell Telephone Companies of the United States and Canada and the Western Electric Company. It also owns and directly operates the long distance and toll lines which connect the various operating Bell Companies. Its strategic position is invulnerable. The $589,370,000 of physical property exceeds the capital liabilities by approximately $35,000,000. This does not include the incalculable value of rights-of-way (acquired at a cost of $8,000,000) and franchises, most of which are perpetual, and which could not now be duplicated at any cost. Nor does it include patents and good will.

A Safe Investment Yielding Larger Returns than Savings Banks

A number of factors combine to commend this stock to those whose funds are now earning only 3% to 4% in savings banks. For the past 27 years the annual dividends have never been less than 7½%. The rate for the past three years is 8%. The vast surplus of physical assets over capital liabilities—the conservative management—the steady growth (17% during 1908, a year of general business depression)—these, and the company's policy of issuing new stock to its stockholders at par, so valuable in the past, and promising even greater future value, warrant us in recommending this stock and the 4% Convertible Bonds as a desirable investment, and we solicit orders for their purchase. Small orders are given equal attention with larger.

PRINCE DOMINO AND "Muffles"

IN RYHME AND IN COLORS.

WILL BEGIN IN THE

Sunday Post-Dispatch

TOMORROW

TEETH EXTRACTED WITHOUT PAIN.

Read What Mr. Davey Says:

"This is to certify that I had this day, April 5, six teeth extracted, and I did not feel any pain whatever during operation, and I also recommend the Boston Dental Co. for painless work. WM. DAVEY, "Maryland Hotel."

Until Jan. 15th, we have decided to make Our Whalebone Set of Teeth, with our everstick suction, which is by all comparison a $15 set, for $4. They will stick in any mouth, no matter how hard it is to fit. What you can expect for $4: The best set of teeth, one that will stick tight to your mouth; never falls when you laugh; bite corn off the cob; do not make a noise when you eat, and look natural as your own.

Gold crown, extra heavy $3.00
Full set of teeth (whalebone) $4.00
Bridge work, per tooth, best gold $3.00
White crowns $3.00
Teeth re-enameled .... [illegible]
Gold fillings .... [illegible]
Best silver fillings .... [illegible]
Platinum fillings .... [illegible]
